"The Nearer the Bone, the Sweeter the Meat."

It's an old and homely adage and finds an application here.

The maker of merchandise has reached the end of his Summer "tether."

His season is about over; yours has just begun.

He's anxious to sell what is left of his made up product at almost any reasonable sacrifice.

We're watching your interests in this matter, and as a result have made purchases that will surprise you by their price cheapness.

Makers of Shirt Waists

Are straining every nerve to get rid of the balance of their season's product. It's a big chance for the consumer to buy these dainty Summer garments at a big drop from early season's prices. At least we thought so when we cornered these lots. It's a case of quick sale, and first come, first served.

BRYAN FILES DENIAL.

Declares He Was Never in the Employ of Mine Owners.

His Advocacy of Free Silver Not of Recent Date—His Income Since Retiring From Congress.

Upper Red Hook N. Y., Aug. 19.—William J. Bryan, for the first time since Senator John M. Thurston, declared that he (Bryan) was in the employ of the mine owners, has made an official denial, coupled with a challenge to the national republican committee to come out in the open and accuse him or forever be silent. Mr. Bryan's attention had been called to the controversy between Senators Thurston and Stewart, and he determined last night to settle the matter if possible. He therefore demands an open charge, which he says he will refute with details of his private life and his financial affairs or silence. He said last night:

"I have already denied that charge on several occasions, but the reiteration of it by Senator Thurston, a distinguished resident of my own state, justifies me in answering it again. I have never at any time or under any circumstances been in the employ of any mine owners, individually or collectively, directly or indirectly, nor have I ever been in the employ of or paid by any bimetallic league association. Aside from my editorial salary of about $150 per month, paid by the Omaha World-Herald, and a small amount derived from the legal profession, my income since my retirement from congress has been derived entirely from lectures before Chautauqua, Lyceum and lecture bureaus which have usually paid me a fixed sum, and from contributions made by the people of the localities where I have spoken. In some instances I have received nothing at all. In most cases I have received more than enough to pay traveling expenses. In only two instances, I think, has my compensation exceeded $100, and in these instances it was about $200 at one place and about $300 at another.

"The first platform on which I ran for congress in 1890, before I was known politically outside of my state, contained a free coinage plank, and my republican opponent that year was an advocate of free coinage. In the campaign of 1892 I again ran on a free coinage platform. In 1894 I again ran on a free coinage platform, and my opponent for the senate, Mr. Thurston, while opposing unlimited coinage at 16 to 1, insisted that he favored bimetallism. I wrote the free coinage plank on which I ran in 1890 and the free coinage planks in the Nebraska state platforms in 1891, 1894 and 1896, and tried to secure the adoption of free coinage planks in the state platforms in 1892 and 1893. I only mention this to show that my advocacy of free silver is not of recent date.

"Having made this answer to Mr. Thurston's letter, I shall hereafter take no notice of individual or newspaper comment on the subject. If the republican national committee will say officially that I have been employed to deliver speeches by any mine owner, a group of mine owners, or by any association supported by mine owners I am ready to make a statement showing in detail all money received by me for spech making."

OPENED TODAY

Was the Republican Campaign in the Queen City.

Senator Sherman Makes the Principal Address, Followed by Lesser Lights.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug. 19.—The republican campaign will be opened here today by Senator Sherman and other speakers. At 11 a. m. the McKinley club gave a parade awaiting the arrival of Senator Sherman from Mansfield at 2.05 p. m. The program includes speaking at the Zoological gardens in the afternoon and evening. In the afternoon W. T. Perkins presides with D. D. Woodmansee, ex-president of the republican league, ex-Congressmen H. L. Morey, of Hamilton, and William Doane, of Wilmington, as speakers. At the night meeting Colonel Markbreit, publisher of the Volksblatt, presides. Congressman J. P. Bromwell speaks first. Senator Sherman will be the principal speaker, followed by Solicitor Fred Spiegle in German.

OSCAR NEEBE,

The Anarchist, Leaves His Wife and Elopes.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Oscar Neebe, the anarchist, who was pardoned for his complicity in the Haymarket riots by Governor Altgeld, has left his wife and eloped with another woman. Neebe was a widower at the time of his conviction, and shortly after his release from the penitentiary married his present wife, who is well to do. Mrs. Neebe said last night that her husband had left her and she did not care if he never returned. "If he does," she said, "he will meet some unpleasantness." The woman with Neebe is said to be Mrs. Theresa Mueller, of this city. The couple have known each other but a few weeks.

MISS HELENA MITCHELL.

Kansas School Teacher to Take the Stump for Bryan.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 19.—Miss Helena Hartnett Mitchell, a teacher of delsarte and an actress of ability, will shortly take the stump for Bryan. Miss Mitchell will open at Bloomington, Ill., on Labor day, and from that time up to election will make daily speeches through the country. Miss Mitchell has been authorized by Mr. Bryan to take the stump for him.

EXONERATED.

Superintendent Johnson Found to be Innocent.

The State Investigation Into the Willie Foster Case Shows That He Was Kindly Treated.

Indianapolis, Aug. 19.—Secretary Bicknell, of the board of state charities, who has returned from Fort Wayne, says that the investigation of the case of Will Foster resulted in the exoneration of the officials of the school. The boy is an eppleptic and his parents charged that he had been cruelly treated. The evidence and records showed that he had burned his hands badly on a hot water pipe while in a fit, and that he had received proper care in the hospital.

HAGEY GUILTY.

Poisoned Eyster for the Purpose of Robbery.

Laura and Maude Clark Held as Accessories—The Case Attracts Much Interest.

Lincoln, Neb, Aug. 19.—The coroner's jury investigating the Eyster murder case, found that the deceased came to his death as a result of poison administered by Cliff Hagey for the purpose of robbery, and that the Clark women, Laura and Maude, who made a confession last night to County Attorney Woodward, were accessories to the crime. It developed that Hagey's real name is Hutchins. This morning J. W. Hutchins, a railroad man from Stuart, Iowa, called at the police station and asked to see the suspected man. He identified him as his brother, but the meeting between the two was not a cordial one. It appears that the man who calls himself Hagey was adopted by a family of that name when he was a child two or three years old and he took that name, while his brother, who is considerably older, retained the name of Hutchins. The police are still engaged in arresting everyone who may have had anything to do with the killing of Eyster.

SWELTERING WEATHER

Hastens the Opening of the Cotton Bole.

Texas Planters Harvesting Their Crops Four Weeks in Advance of Other Seasons.

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 19.—The thermometer made its regular score of 106° yesterday. The red hot air does not perceptibly cool off until long after midnight. Wagon loads of negroes continue to leave town to pick cotton. This movement is exactly one month earlier than usual. This means that cotton has prematurely opened and will all be picked by the 15th of September. It generally takes to the 1st of February to gather all the crop, but this year it will all be at the gin houses by the 1st of October. Many buyers who have ready money are collecting at the country towns and are snapping up every bale of cotton at present prices. They say they intend holding until spring, believing it will then be worth more money.

NARROW ESCAPE.

A Battleship Turns Its Guns on the Flagship,

Sending a Shower of Leaden Missiles About Admiral Gervais and His Staff.

Paris, Aug. 19.—During the artillery practice of the French Mediterranean squadron yesterday, off Toulon, says a dispatch from that city, Admiral Gervais and his staff had a narrow escape Instead of aiming at a target which was being towed 500 yards behind the flag ship Brenius, a battleship of 11,000 tons displacement, the cruiser Vautour, turned her quick fire guns on the flag ship for some time. The shots rained around Admiral Gervais and his staff, and his escape was a miracle. The glass in the admiral's conning tower was riddled and a sailor was wounded. There is much mystery as to how the mistake occurred, as it was impossible that the gunners could have missed the mark by 500 yards.

WORK OF THE FLAMES.

Methodist Parsonage Burned at Wheeler, Ind.

Valparaiso, Ind., Aug. 19.—The new Methodist parsonage at Wheeler, this county, was destroyed by fire yesterday. The pastor and family were compelled to jump from the second story to escape. Last night at the same place the barn and granary of Postmaster Brodie, of this city, were burned, with contents. Loss, $5 000.

Balfour Dying.

Toronto, Ont., Oct. 19.—Hon. W. D. Balfour, who was speaker in the Ontario legislature, and a few weeks ago sworn in as provincial secretary, is lying at the point of death. He has had two attacks of hemorrhage of the lungs. No hopes are entertained of his recovery.

T. A. Giberson, representing the Cleveland Stone company, is in the city in the interest of his firm. This company furnishes the stone curbing used on the new pavements now under way.

BRYAN'S ITINERARY

Will Speak in Every City in New York.

The Home of David B. Hill Will Give Him an Ovation—His Route.

Upper Red Hook N. Y., Aug. 19.—William Jennings Bryan has determined to make a pretty thorough canvass of the state of New York and for the first time since the days of Martin Van Buren will make addresses in nearly every important city. He will first go to Albany, the home of David B. Hill, spending five hours there. He will visit each big city along the New York Central road. Speaking of his trip today, he said:

"We shall leave Upper Red Hook at 6:56 on Tuesday, the 25th, reaching Albany at 8:30 p. m. We will leave there about 10 p. m. and go to Syracuse, reaching there at 2:05 a. m., and remain there until 12 m., and then reach Rochester at 2:25 p. m; stop at Rochester an hour, arriving at Buffalo about 4:45 p. m. Then we take the first train for Erie, Pa., arriving there between 7 and 8 o'clock, and will attend a meeting of democratic clubs that night and return the next morning to Buffalo, where he will attend another meeting of democratic clubs. We will remain in western New York for the rest of the week. We will stay in Chautauqua over Sunday, and leave for the west Monday."

Mr. Bryan will probably speak in Medina, Hornellsville and Jamestown also. Mr. and Mrs. Bryan reviewed a troop of United States artillery as it passed through here this morning. It was battery K, First artillery, in command of Lieutenant A. Slaker, and was on its way to Palenville, where it will camp. Today is to be spent very quietly, the party driving down this afternoon to Rhine Cliff and through Ellerslie, the summer home of Governor Morton.

Governor Morton and his family are at their lodge in the Adirondacks and the house is closed. Whether or not Mr. Bryan will speak in Poughkeepsie, Pine Plains or some other place in this county is not yet decided, but he will probably speak in one of the places. On Saturday the party will go over to the Catskills for a day's outing.

THE ELWOOD STRIKE.

Thirteen Hundred Men Out to Stay.

Claim That the Market Prices of Tin Products Does Not Justify a Cut in Wages.

Elwood, Ind., Aug. 19.—Today is the day set for the 1,300 striking employes of the American Tin Plate company to apply for their positions, as individuals at the company's scales of wages. The union men say that no one will go back to work today, nor will non-union men be allowed to enter the factory. The strikers have details of men on duty, six hours each, and only officers of the company are allowed to go back and forth. The union men say they can get 5,000 men to help them within three hours. The company is stringing electric light wires around the grounds and placing barbed wire on the fences and will demand protection from the state and county today. The sheriff says he will be ready to act promptly.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, has been asked to come to Elwood today. M. N. Garland, vice president of the federation and president of the Iron and Steel workers, will also be present. The union men say that the great mills of the country almost unanimously have signed the old scale and that there is nothing to justify a fifteen per cent. cut in wages. The adjutant general said last night that no troops had been ordered to be in readiness and that it lies with the governor to issue such an order.

WORTH RECOGNIZED.

Colonel Sawtelle Appointed Quartermaster General.

Brief Sketch of the Military Career of the Man Whom Uncle Sam Favors.

Washington, Aug. 19.—The president has appointed Colonel Charles G. Sawtelle to be quartermaster general of the army vice General Batchelder, resigned. Colonel Sawtelle is now stationed at Governors Island, New York.

Colonel Sawtelle was appointed to the military academy from Maine and graduated in 1854. On September 12 1894, he received his appointment as colonel. He received the brevet rank of major, lieutenant colonel, colonel and brigadier general March 13, 1865, for faithful and meritorious services during the war. He participated in the Sioux expedition of 1855, in the Utah expedition and in the march to California several years later and was quartermaster of the Colorado river expedition in 1859. During the war Colonel Sawtelle was actively engaged in service in the quartermaster's department in the eastern and western parts of the country. Most of the time since the war he served as chief quartermaster in various departments up to September 1, 1894, when he was assigned to duty at Governor's Island, as chief quartermaster of the department of the east. He will retire in May, 1898. The appointment of Colonel Sawtelle as quartermaster general will result in the promotion of the following named officers: Lieut. Col. Wm. B. Hughes, to be colonel; Major John V. Fuery, to be lieutenant colonel, and Captain Chas. A. Booth, to be major.

KEEP TAB ON THEM.

Liquor Dealers of the State Hold a Meeting.

They Are Keeping Close Watch on Legislative Candidates and Know How They Will Vote.

Indianapolis, Aug. 19.—A meeting of the executive board of the State Liquor league was held yesterday afternoon to perfect arrangements for the annual convention of the league, to be held at Tomlinson hall September 17 and 18.

An important feature of the convention will be the mass meeting on the evening of the 17th. To this meeting all reputable saloon men are invited, whether members of the league or not. It is understood that by that time legislative tickets in all counties of the state will have been selected. It is said that the league is keeping close tab on all nominees, knows how they will vote on liquor laws, and just what is to be expected of them when the legislature meets next winter.

If all reports of this character are in by the time of the convention it is probable that some decision will be reached at that time as to whether an effort shall be made to secure the repeal of the Nicholson bill, or whether it will be wiser to simply bend the efforts of the league to defeat the passage of new and more stringent laws.

An official of the league said yesterday that no attention is being paid to politics in this campaign. He said that two years ago the league thought it could depend upon democratic legislators and a democratic executive, but learned its mistake too late. "We know our friends now," he said, "and shall work for their success, no matter to which party they belong."

STEVENS ARRIVES.

Reaches Washington and Immediately Sets to Work.

Advises Co-operation With the Silver Men of All Parties That Harmony May be Complete.

Washington, Aug. 19.—I. N. Stevens, acting secretary of the silver party, arrived in Washington today. He has been in conference with the leaders of both the populist and democratic parties here. It is the wish of the silver party to arrange separate co-operation with the committees of both the parties in order that there may be complete harmony among the supporters of Bryan. There is some talk that the headquarters of all the parties will be in the Wormley building so that the co-operation may be more complete. The populist executive committee continued its session, but nothing more than a discussion of the situation was the result of the morning session of the committee.

WINONA BIBLE SCHOOL.

Dr. Chapman Accepts the Position of Director.

Eagle Lake, Ind., Aug. 19.—It was with great interest that the large audience listened yesterday to the instructive lecture of Professor White on "Methods of Studying Paul's Epistle to the Romans." His familiarity with all the Scriptures makes this course of lectures of great value to the Bible school student. The discourse delivered on "Grieving the Spirit," by Dr. Chapman, yesterday morning was filled with many points valuable to those leading Christian lives. A lecture showing deep study of the ancient manuscripts of the Bible was given by Professor Crawford, of Danville Theological seminary. Rev. B. F. Myers, of London, England, arrived last night and spoke for the first time to the audience of several hundred, which has heard about him and now has the privilege of hearing the man himself.

Yesterday all the men on the grounds gathered on the steamer City of Warsaw and as they were being piloted about on the lake a conference was held, at which time Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman accepted the offer which had been tendered the day before to the director of the Bible conference to be held here next year. The acceptance was hailed with great gladness. Then the conference heartily indorsed the action of the trustees of Winona assembly, congratulating them on the acceptance of the affair.

HOKE SMITH BACK.

Brings His Vacation to an End—Interviewed.

Washington, Aug. 19.—Secretary Hoke Smith returned today from Lincolton, North Carolina, where he has been taking a much needed rest with his family for a fortnight. The secretary had no comment to make on politics and was noncommittal as to the report that he would stump Georgia for the democratic nominees between now and November. Senator Bacon, of Georgia, is in the city and had an interview with him this morning.

The steamer "City of Warsaw" ran ashore on the south end of Eagle Lake yesterday with about 200 ladies aboard. The steamers Welcome and Eagle, after a vain effort to pull the Warsaw off the beach, transferred the passengers and landed them at Winona. When the accident occurred the ladies were holding a meeting on board the steamer and raised $200 for the benefit of the association entertainment fund for the general assembly of 1897.

COCKRAN'S REPLY

To the Speech of the Democratic Presidential Candidate.

He Addresses a Big Meeting at Madison Square Garden, New York, in Reply to Mr. Bryan.

New York, Aug. 19.—The mass meeting of the Democratic Honest Money league was held last evening in Madison Square garden under the most favorable auspices and thousands of persons turned out to hear the Hon. W. Bourke Cockran's reply to the speech of William Jennings Bryan, delivered in the same amphitheatre last Wednesday night. At 8:25, when Mr. Cockran came in, every seat was occupied. The speaker of the evening was introduced by Hon. Perry Belmont. Mr. Cockran's speech was quite lengthy and, after his opening statements, he spoke in reply to Mr. Bryan as follows:

In the time to which I must confine myself tonight, I can do nothing but examine that one question which Bryan himself declares to be the overshadowing issue of this campaign. I am a little puzzled when I read this speech to decide just what Bryan himself imagines will be the fruit of the change in the standard of value throughout this country. If Bryan could show me that by any means known on heaven or earth, wages could be increased, I will be ready to support him, because I know of no test of prosperity absolutely infallible except the rate of wages paid to laborers. When we come to find how Bryan expects to increase the wages of labor we find ourselves lost in a maze of contradiction. No man can tell how, where or when the wages of workingmen are to be increased; but anyone who examines the scheme can see that the inevitable consequence of a debasement in the standard of value must be a reduction in the rate of wages, and that is the conspiracy in which the populists are engaged. Now, Mr. Bryan tells us that he wants to cheapen the dollar; that he wants to increase the volume of money. Nothing is more common than the mistake that money and property are identical. They are not. There may be a very large volume of circulating medium and very great poverty. The issue of paper money simply is no more an increase of wealth than the issue by an individual of his promissory note would show an increase of his property. As a matter of fact, the increase in coinage is no proof of an increase in property, but may be a strong proof of a decrease in wealth. It is not the volume of money, but the activity of money that counts.

The basis of sound trade is sound money, money which like the gold coinage of this country, the government cannot affect if it tried to. I can take a $10 gold piece and I can defy all the powers of the governments of the earth to take five cents of value from it. Having earned it by the sweat of my brow; having earned it by the exercise of my brain; having earned it by the exchange of my commodities, I can go to the uttermost ends of the earth and wherever I present it, its value will be unquestioned and unchanged. That gold dollar, this meeting, the democratic party and the honest masses of this country without distinction of party divisions, demand shall be paid to the laborer when he earns it and that no power on earth shall cheat him out of the sweat of his brow. Mr. Bryan's language is that he is going to improve the conditions of the people of this country. If he is going to work any change in the conditions of men he must increase the material possession of some part of the community. Now, if he got possession of the government tomorrow, he would not create one single thing of value by any exercise of governmental power in the world. No power ever yet exercised by tyrant or constitutional monarch can cause a barren field to become fruitful. It requires the labor of men and of men alone to create wealth. If Mr. Bryan is going to enrich somebody, the thing which he means to bestow on him he must take from somebody else. Who is to be despoiled? Who is to be enriched by the exercise of this new scheme of government? [A cry of the silver mine owners] My friend, the silver mine owner will get cheated with the rest. A government never can be generous, because if it be generous to one it must be oppressive to another. But his financial scheme contemplates an increase in the prices of certain commodities, allowing labor to shift for itself. If the price of commodities be increased and the price of labor be left stationary, why that means the cutting down of the rate of wages.

If instead of a dollar which consists of a given quantity of gold equal to 100 cents anywhere in the world, with a purchasing power of 100, the laborer is to be paid in dollars worth fifty cents each, why he can only buy half as much with a day's wages as he buys now. Wage earners, Mr. Bryan says, know that while the gold standard raises the purchasing power of the dollar, it also makes it difficult to obtain possession of that dollar. They know that employment is less permanent, less work more probable, and re-employment less certain. Mr. Bryan would have you believe that prosperity is advanced by cheapening the rate of wages, but a fall in the rate of wages always comes from narrow production; and narrow production means there is little demand for labor in the market. When after the panic of 1873, the price of labor fell to ninety cents per day, it was harder to obtain labor than when the rate of labor was $2 00. The difference between the populist who seeks to cut down the rate of wages and the democrat who seeks to protect it, is the democrat believes high wages and prosperity are synonymous and the populist wants to cut the rate of wages in order that he may tempt the farmer to make war upon his own workingmen. Mr. Bryan leads the van in saying that it is the creditor he is after.

Labor is always the creditor of at least one day's work. When any man can show me a laborer who has been paid in advance for a day's work, I will show him a laborer who is a debtor. The laborer by the very law of his being is creditor for a week's work or two weeks' work. Every great industrial enterprise has for its chief creditors its own laborers. The heaviest account in every department of industry, whatever it may be, is always the wages account. This proposal of the populists is intended to enlist the farmer in a conspiracy to reduce the wages paid to this labor that he may have a larger proportion of his own products, and they are willing to cut down the wages of every man who works, in hope that they can sail into power on a wave of cupidity and greed awakened in the breast of the voter.

MINERS KILLED.

Fell From the Top to the Bottom of the Shaft.

The Life Crushed Out of Three Men by a Distressing Accident at Butte, Mont.

Butte, Mont., Aug. 19.—Pete Ryan, foreman of the St. Lawrence mine, the property of the Anaconda mine, and Jack Campbell, and John Manning, two miners, were killed at 5:10 o'clock last evening by a fall of the cage from the top of the mine to the bottom of the shaft at the 1,200 level. The two miners were working at the bottom beneath the bulkhead at the 1,200 level, deepening the shaft, when the cage containing Ryan fell from the top, instantly crushing the life out of the two men below, also killing Ryan who was in the cage. Ryan had just come to the top and was about to step out of the cage when the brake refused to work and the cage started down the shaft with fearful velocity. The engineer on top tried to throw on the clutch but could not. The safety also refused to work and the engineer and brakeman jumped out of the window in time to avoid the crash of iron and wood as the reel broke to pieces and tons of iron was shot through roof and walls.

DEMOCRATIC STUDENTS

Will Form a Permanent National Organization.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 19.—Some of the students of the University of Chicago who are friendly to Mr. Bryan are enthusiastic about a national league of democratic college men, intending to make a projected organization permanent. A convention will be held the latter part of Octobor. Chicago is to be the headquarters, so as to be in direct touch with the democratic campaign committee. A call was issued today urging all students who are in sympathy to organize Bryan clubs in their respective institutions at once and to communicate immediately with William Oeschger, president of the Bryan club of the University of Chicago.

A CURFEW LAW

Enacted by the City Council of Topeka, Kansas.

Topeka, Kas., Aug. 19.—The city council has enacted a curfew law. It provides that all children under sixteen years of age, found on the streets or in public places unaccompanied by guardians, after 9 p. m. in summer and 8 o'clock p. m. in winter, shall be arrested and fined not less than $5 nor more than $25. The fire bell will ring every evening fifteen minutes before the hour.

Canada House of Commons.

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 19.—Of the 213 members of the Dominion house of commons, 209 have been elected and of these there is not likely to be many absent from the election of a speaker today, judging from the large number who have already arrived here. There was caucusing last night among the conservatives as to the leadership, but it is almost certain that Tupper will be the man for the present.

Body Found.

Denver, Col., Aug. 19.—The body of Paul Rose, a Weld county cattleman, who was murdered recently by a cattle rustler, has been found buried in the sand near the Colorado Nebraska line. His herd was found in the possession of Al Cochran, king of the cattle rustlers of Colorado and Nebraska. Cochran is in jail at Greely. Threats to lynch him are being made.

BAD FOR SHUMAN.

A Young Man Charged With a Penitentiary Offense.

Frank Shuman Receives Stolen Property, is Arrested and Bound Over to the Circuit Court.

Frank Shuman, who is in the pawn broking and second hand business with his father, Erastus Shuman, was placed under arrest today charged with a felony that is punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary for not less than one and not more than fourteen years.

The arrest was the culmination of a theft committed some time ago by Lee, the eighteen-year-old son of A. D. Craig, of 141 Horace street. Lee, it seems, stole his father's silver watch and tried to pawn it at Mariotte's, but without success. The officers were notified by Mr. Craig of his loss and Sergeant Daseler made a tour of the pawn broking establishments to give a description of the missing property and to ask their assistance in apprehending the guilty party. At that time Mr. Craig did not know that his son committed the deed. When the officer called at Shuman's he was informed that no such a watch had been left there. The number of the time piece and a careful description were given to Mr. Shuman and the officer left. Later it developed that the identical watch had been pawned at this place, the fact becoming known by a pawn ticket sent to Mr. Craig by his son, who had disappeared shortly after taking the watch. Young Craig became penitent and wrote a letter to his father, explaining the reason of his sudden departure and enclosing the pawn ticket. This act relieves the young man of any real dishonest motive, may it be said to the credit of himself and his folks, who are highly respectable people.

Frank Shuman must now explain to the court the circumstances of the case. Claiming he did not have the watch when the officers called and being warned against receiving it puts him in a most uncomfortable position.

Frank Shuman has always been regarded as a bright and promising young fellow and his present dilemma is seriously regretted.

The young man was placed under $500 bond to appear for trial in the circuit court. J. B. Harper has been retained to defend him.

POLICE COURT.

Last night Deputy Wiley arrested John Smith and John Carline and turned them over to Officer Greer. The men were drunk. Mayor Scherer sent them to jail.

MAY BE RICH.

Allen County Farmer Unearths Mineral Ore.

Specimens Now in the Hands of Dr. Drayer, Who Will Make a Careful Assay.

Dr. L. P. Drayer is today making an assay of mineral ore taken from the farm of a prominent Allen county farmer, whose name the doctor does not feel at liberty to divulge without permission. The ore is rich in iron, there being probably 20 per cent. of metal to the rock. Just how much of a deposit is to be found cannot be told now, as a complete investigation will not be made until Dr. Drayer has completed his examination. The same farmer brought in two small particles of gold, but this discovery cannot be considered important. It simply shows that small quantities of the rich metal were deposited in the gravel by the glacial drift.

SALOON MEN ARRESTED.

John Wilkinson and Geo. Braybrook Had No License.

Brought Before Mayor Scherer This Afternoon—Rumored That More Affidavits Will be Filed.

John Wilkinson, saloonkeeper at 11 West Columbia street, and George Braybrook, in the same business on Harrison street, are under arrest, charged with conducting their places without a license.

Both parties are having their hearing before Mayor Scherer this afternoon.

A rumor is out that more affidavits on the same charge will be filed against several other saloonkeepers soon.

POMPEII'S RUIN.

A Large Crowd Witnessed It Last Night.

There was a large attendance at the second production of Pain's wonderful pyrotechnic spectacular, "The Last Days of Pompeii," at Centlivre park last night. The production was even better than on Monday evening, and the spectators were delighted. The specialties were of the highest order, and the pyrotechnics could hardly have been surpassed. The feature of the evening was a picture in fire of the handsomest lady in Fort Wayne. Each of a score of Fort Wayne's lovely women instantly recognized in the glowing outlines her own counterfeit presentment, and the management wisely regarded discretion as the better part of valor and declined to announce the lovely one's identity.

Tonight will be free silver night and a portrait of William J. Bryan will be presented in fire.

Mrs. Byron, living west of the city, came in yesterday to do some shopping and while here her five year old child was attacked by spasms and was taken into the Postoffice drug store, where Dr. Heaton resuscitated the little one. Mrs. Byron and her child are now stopping at the Union house.

USED MORPHINE.

Paul Siegler, a School Teacher, Adjudged Insane.

News as Found in the Courts—The Defense of Dr. Johnson in the Case Against Him.

Justice Bullerman bound Solomon McLiesh over to court in the sum of $300 on the charge of stealing a watch. The offense was committed about a year ago.

The man Bellamy, accused of wife desertion, was fined $20 and costs. In default of payment he was sent to jail.

In the superior court Ambrose Donnelly has sued Isaac M. Yarian and Mary E. Yarian to enforce lien for $1,000. Breen & Morris are attorneys.

Justices Bullerman and Huser and Doctors Gilbert and Duemling have adjudged Paul Siegler, the teacher in the Lutheran schools at Goeglein, to be insane and he will be sent to the Richmond asylum. He has been addicted to the use of morphine and treated his pupils and also his own children in a cruel manner. The doctors discovered many morphine bottles at his home. It was not known that he used the drug, as he sent to other cities for it.

The case of Mrs. Inez Johnson against her husband, Dr. Johnson, for support, will be called in the circuit court in the September term. Dr. Johnson has employed attorneys and will make a vigorous defense. His answer filed in court will show that he was married to the plaintiff in 1893 and that they have since separated. It will also show that since their separation he has contributed nearly $1,200 to her support. At the time of the separation he gave her the household goods, valued at $1,800.

AN AUGUST FROST.

Farmers Bring News of Jack's Presence in the Lowlands.

Vegetation in Such Places is Either Badly Injured or Ruined—A Serious Matter.

Farmers are bringing in the news of damaging frosts in the low lands last night. In the vicinity of Little River ditch corn and vegetation was badly damaged, some of it being ruined.

This advanced state of affairs is alarming to fruit growers and others.

Yesterday's telegraph reports showed that there have been frosts in Montana and some of the northwest territory but it was not anticipated in Indiana.

Last night's frost is the subject of a good deal of talk among the old timers today.

DEATH'S SAD VISIT.

Little Daughter of Dr. G. B. Stemen Summoned.

The Child Succumbs to Whooping Cough—Funeral of Miss Biegler.

At 2 o'clock this morning Mary, the little daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George B. Stemen, of 300 West Main street, died after an illness of a few days' duration. Dysentery and whooping cough caused her death. Her age was two years, one month and twelve days. The funeral will be held Friday but the hour has not yet been set.

FUNERAL OF MR FERGUSON.

The funeral of Elmer Ferguson will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. from the house, 209 East Jefferson street, and at 10:30 from the U. B. church.

FUNERAL OF MISS BIEGLER.

Today, in Lindenwood, the remains of Miss Elizabeth Biegler were laid to their last rest. The obsequies were held from the residence of her mother, Mrs. Emeline Biegler, of South Wayne avenue, in the presence of a large concourse of sorrowing friends. Rev. A. K. Zartman, pastor of Grace Reformed church, delivered the funeral sermon in the absence of the pastor of the Third Presbyterian church, of which the deceased was a devoted member. Miss Biegler was born in Fairfield county, Ohio, and came with her parents to Fort Wayne, in her girlhood. She taught in the Allen county country schools about six years, subsequently taking a position in the city schools. Her method of instruction was of a high order, appreciated by the superintendent as well as the principals and pupils of the grades which she held successfully in the Washington, Jefferson and Hoagland buildings. During these years of teaching a universal friendship grew between her and her pupils, and to all of these young people there comes a shadow of sadness because of her death. That death should have chosen one so useful in life, so noble in her Christian aims and endeavors, so self sacrificing in behalf of mankind, seems a pity, but the sorrow stricken family and friends can only bow submissively to God's will. Miss Biegler's good deeds in life will be perpetuated with tender memories for a long future. Mrs. Emeline Biegler, widow of Daniel Biegler, who died a year ago, and a sister and two brothers of the deceased are the bereaved family. The sister is Maud, a teacher in the Miner school, and the brothers Pearl, a machinist in the Pittsburg shops, and Leo, who is a carrier for The Sentinel on the South Wayne route.

Bulldozing Methods.

The Chicago Chronicle, one of the most uncompromising of gold advocates, calls a halt on some of the methods of the republican campaign. The Chronicle referring to the attempts of certain manufacturers to influence the voting of their employes through coercion, says:

"The bulldozing system is not only un-American, but it invariably reacts upon those who employ it. The device of threatening to close mills and manufactories unless Major McKinley is elected is cowardly and it defeats its own purpose. No man with a spark of independence in his make up will submit to the threat thus implied. * * * When Benjamin F. Jones, of Pittsburg, once chairman of the republican national committee, posts a notice in his own mills "inviting" his employes to contribute $1 each to the McKinley campaign fund he makes votes for Bryan, and when a railroad manager issues a circular threatening a reduction of wages unless the republicans win he simply assures the resentment of his men in its most effective way—at the polls. The American voter is not an idiot and still less is he a serf to be forced to deposit his ballot under a threat of the knout. He may be coaxed, but he cannot be coerced, and coercion has been and still is the main reliance of the republican party. This year of all years is the worst possible for bulldozing political methods. There is enough irritation already without adding to the ill feeling by the imbecile tactics of Mr. Hanna's henchmen. The cause of honest money has no votes to throw away and the supporters of national honor will insist that it shall not suffer defeat at the hands of the protection barons, whose sole idea of argument is a club. Let Hanna call off his dogs."

Only a Bluff.

That Spain may present a bill of damages against the United States on account of alleged violations of the neutrality laws is not impossible, but that the United States will ever pay Spain a dollar is extremely improbable. The Spanish demand is simply in the nature of a bluff. The United States government has done all that could have been expected short of actively interfering against the Cuban insurgents. At great expense, and in the face of an almost universal sentiment in the country in favor of the insurgents, the United States has kept vessels on guard along the Florida coast and elsewhere, and has, by so doing, prevented large reinforcements from reaching the insurgents. But for this action on the part of the United States, the island would have been lost to Spain months ago. Let but the United States declare a policy of "hands off," and regiments would join the Cubans where companies do now. Governments, even the most despotic, are affected by the sentiment of the mass of the people. The United States government is a government of, for and by the people. The people of the United States are in favor of the freedom of Cuba. Yet the government, in obedience to a sense of duty, has done much to prevent that freedom. It certainly has no money to pay Spain because it has not done more.

Americans in the Navy.

While Americans have always been proud of their navy and its history, there has been considerable chagrin during recent years because of the fact that the war vessels of the nation were manned largely by seamen who were not only foreigners by birth, but were not even naturalized American citizens. Ever since the revolutionary war, when England sent the Hessians to this country to subdue the Yankee rebels, Americans have been prejudiced against the plan of hiring foreigners to do their fighting. The great American naval victories have been won by Yankee tars, and while the Norwegians, Swedes, Portuguese and Russians may make excellent sailors, so long as they have not a personal interest in the country they are to defend, their best efforts cannot be expected. The patriot is the best fighter and the man who is battling for his home always displays the greatest courage.

It is agreeable to note an improvement in this regard in the personnel of the United States navy. Some time ago Secretary Herbert gave orders that preference in enlistment should be given to Americans, and congress supplemented this action with a law permitting the naturalization of sailors, under certain conditions, without the formality of residing on land. As a result, the crews of the war vessels are fast becoming Americanized. The foreign element is rapidly disappearing, for, in the first place, more native born citizens are being enlisted than was the case a few years ago, and, furthermore, many of the most desirable of the foreign sailors are taking advantage of the new law to become naturalized. They esteem it a privilege to have the right to call the flag they sail under their own, and it is easy to believe that their efficiency will be much increased by the change. The new order of things is very gratifying, and if it can be so arranged that all the officers and men of the navy may be citizens, either by birth or by naturalization, Americans will take even more pride in their navy than at present.

Bourke Cockran's Speech.

No one will dispute the statement that Hon. Bourke Cockran is a brilliant, eloquent, able orator. He is probably one of the most forcible and effective platform speakers in the country and whenever or wherever he speaks he is always sure of a large audience. Hence it is not strange that at the meeting held last night in Madison Square Garden, in New York city, when Mr. Cockran replied to the speech made at the same place several days ago by Mr. W. J. Bryan, the democratic candidate for president, he should be greeted by an audience which it is said numbered 20,000 people.

Brilliant as was his address and grand as was his rhetoric, however, his argument against the free coinage of silver, which the democratic party and Mr. Bryan advocate, contained nothing new. It consisted of nothing but what has already been said by other speakers and through the editorial columns of the republican press ever since the silver question has been under discussion, and hence the speech was not the "clincher for the gold standard "which its friends had hoped it would be.

Some of his arguments have been exploded time and again by the democratic press and democratic speakers. He asserts that the silver dollar, coined at the ratio of 16 to 1, will be a fifty cent dollar, but he does not state that that dollar will pass in all the avenues of business in this country and purchase just as much as a gold dollar will, but on the other hand tells us that this dollar will only buy half as much as it does now. Such sophistry will not pass among men who know what the purchasing power of the silver dollar really is. If the value of the silver dollar is ever reduced to fifty cents Mr. Cockran ought to know that labor will not be affected by it. The price of labor is governed by a law which, if wages were paid in depreciated fifty cent dollars, would give to the laborer just twice the amount of the face value of that money.

And then Mr. Cockran states "I can take a $10 gold piece and I can defy all the powers of the governments of the earth to take five cents of value from it." Mr. Cockran has probably forgotten that both gold and silver American coins pass in England's banks for just their bullion value, and that his gold $10 piece would not always be received for $10 when he presented it there.

When Bland and some of the other silver orators get after Mr. Cockran, the eloquent New Yorker will have to crawl into his hole.

Mrs. Charles Boshler, of 20 West Butler street, leaves this evening for Elkhart to visit relatives.

About the Clearing House.

The best illustration of how millions of dollars' worth of commercial transactions can be conducted with the actual transfer of very little cash indeed is probably to be seen in the operations of a clearing house in a great city. The greatest part of its work of course consists in the balancing, exchanging and reconveying to their original senders bank checks and other certificates of indebtedness and readiness to pay.

A. owes B. $1,000. A. does not carry so much money around with him as a general thing. So he gives B. a check on his bank for the money. It is not convenient for B. to go to A.'s bank and collect the money. He simply deposits the check for $1,000 in his own bank, which may be 100 miles distant from A.'s bank. B.'s bank lets him have the actual money if he wants it, either all in a lump or in installments. But B.'s bank sends A.'s $1,000 check to the clearing house. There, where all the accounts of all the banks belonging to the clearing house are squared up, A.'s check is received and sent back to A.'s bank whence it started.

The check may not be cashed so soon, however. It may be handed by B. over to somebody to whom he in turn owes money and put by that person into his particular bank. Sooner or later, however, it returns to the clearing house. A few of the largest cities of the Union have clearing houses of their own. Such houses in the west send checks, certificates, etc., to the clearing houses of the eastern cities and those of the east return western accounts in like manner.

Before the clearing house methods were adopted banks used to settle their accounts with one another by sending from one to another messengers loaded with bags of money and commercial paper. It was a clumsy and risky way of doing business, and now they simply send their commercial paper either on the debit or credit side to the clearing house, where the accounts are rapidly balanced between banks and each receives back its own paper.

The largest clearing house in this country is in New York, where paper representing $120,000,000 sometimes changes hands in a single day, that, too, with the exchange of very little cash money. Sixty-six banks belong to the New York Clearing House association, and during the panic of 1893 they made a compact that they would support one another when an inconveniently large demand was made on the deposits of any one of them. They did this by means of the issue of clearing house certificates.

Don't Talk of the Devil to Children.

Elizabeth Cady Stanton writes that all the happiness of her childish years was crippled and paralyzed through the fear of the devil. She was told that he was ever ready to pounce upon her and carry her off to a place where he would pitch her into the fire. She says she was taught to believe he was always standing immediately behind her at every moment of her existence. Her days were full of fear, her nights of horror and torment, because of this dreadful superstition. Her health suffered from it and her normal intellectual, physical and moral development were rendered impossible. It was not till she was 17 years old and read some books which set her mind free that she finally shook off this nightmare of her childhood.

Those who threaten children with the devil for the purpose of scaring them into obedience are doing the worst that could possibly be done. Every word of this kind is intensified tenfold by the vivid childish imagination, so that the seeds of future nervous diseases and mental disorders are actually and by no means infrequently sown.

A sort of epidemic of seeing the devil lately spread through the public schools of one portion of a large American city and serious consequences resulted. A panic occurred in one school, in which the life was almost crushed out of some of the children and others were thrown into spasms and fainting fits. It all came from the big yarns of a little girl who had been scared nearly to death by stories of the devil in her own home. She repeated the tales to her little schoolmates till they in turn began to see hoofed and horned demons on every housetop and in the darkness of every night.

Unless you are animated by an earnest desire to drive your children into insanity and invalidism, don't talk to them about the devil.

Lowest Depths of Vulgarity.

It has been left for some Americans to reach them. Unfortunate it is in some respects that money has been heretofore accumulated so quickly and easily in this country. The result is that wealth has come to people who do not know how to spend it. They have neither the education, the temperament, nor the large philanthropic view of life which would enable them to use their wealth wisely and æsthetically. All they know is to show it off and to show it off in the most ostentatious way. Really high bred persons are not fond of attracting public attention to themselves.

When away from home, they dress and act in the most quiet manner. Their clothing and all their belongings, while of the best quality and highest elegance, are thoroughly unobtrusive. To pass in a crowd without being noticed one way or the other is the aim of all well bred persons who are obliged to appear in a crowd.

The aim of the vulgar and ignorant rich is exactly opposite. To attract attention to themselves by displaying their outlay of money is their chief aim. The bicycle is the latest device which enables the fool rich to show their ignorance and lack of culture. They stick diamonds and colored gems into the handle bars and lanterns of their wheels, they cover the wheel itself with gold and silver gilt. A bicycle lately made for one of these stupid individuals cost $1,500. The vulgarity and snobbery of ignorant riches can reach no lower depth.

A time will come when beer wagons, milk wagons and heavy hauling wagons will be propelled by mechanical motive power. Then they can have broad tires of rubber or something better. All streets can be paved with asphalt. It is the pounding of horses' feet that now wears out the streets. In that blessed day nervous people who are forced to live in cities will get a rest.

The name of the Prince of Samos, who is governor of Crete, is Berovitch Georgi Pasha.

THREE LITTLE BRYANS

PRETTY CHILDREN OF THE PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE.

Their Mother Devotes Much Time Instructing in the Precepts of Christian Religion — Ruth, Grace and William Their Names.

(Lincoln Letter.)

MRS. WILLIAM Bryan is not only a very modest woman, but also a very attractive one. She dislikes publicity, and is averse to being interviewed, because she regards the "I" as egotistical. After some hesitation she consented that I might ask her certain questions and publish the answers. I said to her:—

"Mrs. Bryan, are you fond of society?"

"I am very fond of meeting people," she said, "and I enjoy my own circle of friends, but society as it is generally understood, the formal round of visits, the receptions and other functions at which stereotyped questions are asked and answers given, and which are forgotten at once, because they were never made to be remembered, has very little attraction for me.

"In Lincoln, strange as it may perhaps seem to you coming from the east, we have a very delightful society. There is no great or formal entertaining, but there are professors from the state university, women who are members of clubs and who keep themselves informed on the topics of the day, students of the university, who have come from the east especially to study western agricultural methods, forming a society which is attractive as well as intellectual. Of course you can find the same thing in the east, only with us, perhaps, there is less artificiality and the hollowness of society is what the newspapers seem to be always deploring."

"Have you any pronounced views on the bringing up and education of children?"

Mrs. Bryan laughed. "You have seen quite a little of the children during the last few days," she said, "and you ought to be able to judge as to that. I do not believe in trying to shape out a certain course for a child. I believe he or she must be allowed to develop character and prove what he or she is best fitted for. One thing I do believe in, and that is in giving my daughters a thorough practical education, making them practical in every sense of the word, so that in case they should be dependent on their own exertions they would be able to fight their own battle as well as their brother can.

"Children, I think, should be given plenty of fresh air and exercise, and in their childhood their physical training is of even more importance than their mental. It has been my custom for some years to read to the children every night before they went to bed stories, tales or any other juvenile literature suitable to them. Ruth, my oldest daughter, has always been very fond of reading and being read to, but William for some time took very little interest in it. At last he showed an interest, and now he can always be amused by being read to or by looking at pictures. I believe that children learn a great deal in this way and that it is a good thing for them mentally."

"Are fairy tales a good thing for children to hear?"

"I think so. I read the children Andersen's stories in German, and although they do not understand they like to hear the words, and I translate them as I read. The children in this way get accustomed to the sound of German and pick up a little here and there."

"You naturally believe in the beneficial effect of religion on a child?"

"I do. I do not care so much for creeds, but I think that religion exercises a wholesome and restraining influence, and that children, especially boys, who have been taught a proper reverence for religion, live cleaner and better lives. My code is really a very simple one. I want my children to tell the truth, to be honest and do the best they can with the abilities which have been given them. I don't believe in trying to make children perfect or that anything should be done to stamp the individuality out of them. As I said before, children must, to a great extent, work out their own character and show what they are best suited to accomplish."

"Do you believe in the new woman?"

"There is no new woman."

"Women are to-day what they have always been. I am, of course, in favor of women taking proper outdoor exercise and making themselves as perfect physically as they can mentally, but there must be a proper dividing line between the sexes. I do not ride a bicycle, because I haven't yet had time to learn, but I intend to. I do not see any necessity for women riding in some of the costumes I have seen.

"In brief, I am not an advocate of extremes, either in fashions or anything else. A woman should not, in my opinion, allow herself to stagnate after marriage. She should keep herself as much up to date as possible, which is a good thing not only for her personally, but also for her children and her husband. But a woman's first duty is to her home, and she ought not to allow anything to interfere with that duty."

"Are you much interested in politics?"

"I am very much interested in anything that interests Mr. Bryan, although I am not a politician," Mrs. Bryan laughingly added. "I must not talk politics," she went on to say, "but I will tell you that while Mr. Bryan was in congress, I heard the speeches during the silver debates. Apart from the great question involved at this time I should like to see a return to the true and broad principles of democracy."

"What are your principal forms of amusement?"

"During the last few years in Lincoln, swimming, I think. We have a natatorium supplied with salt water from wells. This water is not only salt, but it has the real green color of water in the ocean. We do not play cards. We have no scruples against them, but neither Mr. Bryan nor myself find any interest in card playing. I am fond of the theater, comedy or tragedy, when it is good, and very fond of music when some one else plays it. When I was a child I was made to do so much practising that when I grew up I fairly detested the sight of a piano. I very seldom play now."

"I was told that you were the president of Lincoln Sorosis."

"Yes, I am. Sorosis is founded on the same lines as its New York prototype, and we discuss books and topics. There is a federation of women's clubs in Nebraska, and I think if you knew our clubs you would agree with me in saying that they rank as high as those in the east."

There were some other questions I wanted to ask Mrs. Bryan, but as several men came in just then to be presented to her I lost my opportunity. She is very proud of the pretty little city, as she has good reason to be, and the charming people living here, and she is anxious to have the people of the east understand that Lincoln is not on the edge of civilization, and that there is as much comfort and refinement to be found here as in any city in New York of the same size.

Some Mosquito Facts.

Not one, but three species are represented among those who venture into human habitations. The one whose sting hurts the most is a little dark-brown creature, but a goodlysized yellow mosquito and a large-sized black variety, with striped legs, are not backward in making their presence known.

Mosquitoes are so natural, so cunning in the manner in which they sting and draw their blood, that it will no doubt surprise most people to be told that sucking human blood is only an acquired taste with them. Dr. Uhler says that their natural food is slime and deleterious organic matter that would be the cause of much malaria were it not eaten by the mosquitoes. "Sucking blood is only an acquired taste," says Dr. Uhler, "but they have learned to do it scientifically. Did you ever notice how quickly they discover and make for places on the exposed parts of your body where arteries full of blood lie near the surface?"

All the mischief of mosquitoes was inherited by the females. The males neither buzz nor sting, nor do they seem to do anything at all except to stay lazily by and watch a spry and energetic female cavort around a human ear and make merry over the annoyance she is causing to the man or woman with nerves.

Entomologists say that the male mosquito is even too modest to eat, or, at any rate, nothing has ever been found in the stomach of one.

The males can't make a noise, because they haven't a pair of sonorous cavities near their wings, as the females have. The air hurled against these cavities by rapidly moving wings causes the buzz heard when Mrs. Mosquito is drawing near.—Baltimore Sun.

STORIES OF THE DAY.

General John C. Smith Tells Colonel Watrous Some Grant Stories.

There were few of the older residents of Galena who knew General Grant better than General John C. Smith, the ex-lieutenant governor, now of Chicago. He knew him before the war, frequently met him in the army and was often with him after the trouble was over while the general lived in the Illinois town.

It was my good fortune to dine with a party of gentlemen in which General Smith was an interesting figure a few years ago. Knowing the relations that had existed between the old commander and General Smith, I am afraid I schemed to turn the talk out of the customary Masonic channel, for it was a party of thirty-third degree Masons who had assembled in Chicago for the purpose of attending the funeral of the late Dr. Hurlbut.

For nearly an hour General Smith entertained the company delightfully with talks about Grant. The first story had a bearing on the charge so often made that General Grant was given to a rather too free use of intoxicants at certain periods of his life. General Smith was on his way up the Mississippi as the guest of Captain Webb of the steamer. After they had passed La Crosse he heard a gentleman talking loudly about his personal acquaintance with General Grant. He had known him before the war and since then; had had various interesting bouts with him. They had drunk hour after hour together. General Smith became indignant and asked the man where he had had such experiences with General Grant.

"Oh, I used to drink a great deal with him at his home in Galena. I met him during the war and drank with him then, and I have had various nice times with him over our bowls since then."

"What year did you drink with General Grant in Galena?"

"Oh, along from 1854 to 1856."

"Ah, just as I supposed," said Grant's champion. "Captain Grant didn't come to Galena until 1860, and I tell you that you didn't drink with him there or in the army; nor have you had bouts with him since the war." The fellow hung his head and could say nothing.

"Those stories about Grant's drinking," continued General Smith, "were cruel in the extreme. When the charges were made during the war that the general was drinking to excess, New York and other papers sent reporters to Galena to investigate, and the people there, as soon as they discovered a reporter, first turned him over to a saloon keeper whose place was near the store of Grant & Perkins. They would ask him if he knew Grant. 'Yes.' 'Was he ever in your saloon?' 'Oh, yes, a great many times.' 'Used to drink pretty hard, didn't he, before the war?' 'No, sir, he didn't drink a drop. There is not a saloon keeper in Galena who ever saw him take a drink. Customers who bought goods of Grant & Perkins would invite the captain into the saloon. He always took a cigar; he never drank. Ask any one in town and he will tell you Captain Grant was not a drinker.'

"After Grant's second election and the question of civil service reform was being brought to the front a number in Galena thought they would use that sentiment to keep their postmaster in the service. There was another candidate, Mr. Houghton, a fine man, a printer editor, who could go to the case and set up an editorial without having first written it. Nearly everybody thought well of him. He needed the office; but the other man had the pull with Congressman Burchard. I had business in New York. That attended to I ran over to Washington, getting there the morning after the congressional delegation had decided to unite in requesting the reappointment of Congressman Burchard's friend. The latter said, 'Smith, I am glad you are in Washington. You are well acquainted with General Grant. We are going to the White House today to ask him to reappoint the Galena postmaster. Go with us.' I consented. The president received us cordially. Burchard made a strong plea. Several other members seconded his efforts. I made what I thought was a convincing talk. The president quietly listened to everything.

"'Have you said all you wish to say, gentlemen?' asked the general.

"'Yes, Mr. President, we have presented our case as strongly as we know how to do,' answered Burchard.

"'Gentlemen, the president is supposed to select the postmasters, but it is a mistake. Senators and members make the selection and the president appoints. But it has occurred to me that I am not grasping or immodest in assuming the right to choose the postmaster of my own town. Gentlemen, I shall appoint Mr. Houghton.' And the next day Mr. Houghton was appointed postmaster of Galena.

"The president had decided some time before to appoint Mr. Houghton, but he wanted to make the appointment with as little embarrassment as possible to Congressman Burchard. He wanted Burchard to make a record for having exerted himself to his fullest extent to secure the appointment. That would set him right with the postmaster, and Grant didn't care what the people said about him for appointing Houghton. He had satisfied himself that the right thing to do was to appoint that old printer editor, and we all agreed before the term expired that the president had done the right thing.

"I guess no president ever got along with the office seekers with less heartburnings, loss of sleep and annoyance than our silent old commander."—J. A. Watrous in Chicago Times-Herald.

It Arrived on Time.

"Are you the engineer?" asked the romantic young lady as she walked up the platform to the locomotive and smiled on the man looking out of the cab window.

"Yes'm," was the curt reply.

"You hold the lives of all the passengers in your hands?"

"Exactly, miss."

"And you feel the fearful responsibility?"

"I do."

"And you will—will"—

"Just so. I've got a $2 dog back there in the baggage car which I'm taking home, and I shall take the most extraordinary precautions to run this train safely into Chicago."—New York Sunday World.

Gottfried Gladdsch, who lost his sight a year ago, will go to New York this week to consult a noted specialist. Mr. Gladdach lost his eyesight by sickness. The business of carrying camping parties is increasing with each year. Last month the Pennsylvania carried over its lines 2,160 campers to different parts of Ohio and Michigan. These campers are made up largely of clubs, members of which arrange to take their vacations at the same time of the year, and the practice is gaining ground from year to year.

Master Mechanic C. H. Doebler is having more improvements made at the Wabash shops and will soon have that establishment a model of convenience. Workmen are engaged in laying tracks to connect the main line with the siding on the north of the machine and boiler shops. This will greatly facilitate the handling of trucks, etc., when being taken to and from the shops.

In passing over the Erie one occasionally sees one of the old broad gauge engines which were in use in the early days of that road. They are seen standing in the yards or are used at the water pumping stations and are diminutive looking engines as compared with the standard gauge locomotives used at present. These engines were run on the Atlantic and Great Western, now the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio division of the Erie system.

These are trying times for railway superintendents, master mechanics and heads of various departments. Retrenchment orders have been issued and to carry them out and at the same time inflict the least hardship upon the men is a matter that causes the heads of the various departments much concern. It is the wish to reduce expenses without reducing wages, and to accomplish this they plan to effect a saving in material and in the purchase of supplies, while if a curtailment of train service is decided on, trainmen are reduced in rank temporarily but still are given the means of earning a livlihood until business takes a turn for the better. Conductors are taken from the caboose and put to braking and those remaining, who are always the older in the service, are given extra runs in order to equalize the falling off in the train service. Instead of hiring new men the old are continued in less important capacities

The Pennsylvania company officials have taken steps in a radical direction to stop the habit of many employes of assigning their wages to other parties. This was done mostly among the shop employes, but not a few of the trainmen were frequently found guilty of the act. When a man became hard up for money he hunted up some one who was willing to accept an order for his wages on a discount and advance him a certain amount of cash. Other men contracted debts at stores and gave the proprietor an order on the paymaster for their wages. This so complicated the paymaster's accounts that he protested, and the officials of the company, believing that the habit was detrimental to the men and to the road, decided to shut down on it at once. If a man is in need of money and can give a reasonable excuse he will be given a check in advance, but no assignment of wages or garnashees will be recognized or permitted in the future.

BUNCO COCKRAN'S MEETING.

Why the "Goldbug" Democrats Oppose Bryan.

Editor SENTINEL:

The telegraph gives a description of a meeting of the gold democrats of the city of New York, held last night, and addressed by Bourke Cockran. It appears that the meeting was presided over by Perry Belmont, the son of August Belmont, the agent of the Rothschild's of Europe, who have controlled the finances of this country more effectually than the people of this country have. It was a very appropriate selection, and clearly evidenced the character of the crowd who had gathered in the neighborhood of Wall street to take counsel as to the most successful means of riveting more strongly around the people the chains of financial oppression. The vice presidents of the meeting embraced the presidents of national banks, railroad companies, trusts and monopolies. Why should they not have served in that capacity—they were there as the representatives of the money power? The account of the meeting states that Cockran was tendered a great ovation and then 'three hearty cheers were given for McKinley and there were hisses when a gallery god yelled 'What's the matter with Bryan?'"

The fact that these good democrats cheered McKinley confirms the assertion of Governor Matthews that they constitute the annex of the republican party. True democrats who have been misled by the cunning and artful representatives of the money power in this city, by the fallacious assertions which they have made and are making, to create dissentions in the ranks of the democratic party, should be no longer deceived by them The motives and purposes of these men are evident. They are doing all in their power to defeat Bryan and elect McKinley They are posing as democrats to render their services in accomplishing their desire and purpose to elect McKinley the more effective.

Who is Bourke Cockran? He was repudiated by his own party two years ago because of his insincerity and uncertainity as a leader of the party. God, for some unknown reason, gifted him with an eloquent tongue, which he is willing to exert, for a money consideration, for any party, or in any cause. On his arrival home from Europe, a few days ago, it was announced that Mark Hanna, the manager of the McKinley campaign, had made an arrangement with him by which he was to receive $250,000 for his services as an orator during the campaign in promoting the election of McKinley. So, Cockran can well afford, at that price, to assail the democratic party and abuse Bryan, and it only remains to be determined whether this political charlatan, in the pay of the republican party, can deceive democrats into voting for McKinley. * * *

REFUSE TO FUSE.

Texas Democrats Reject Populistic Overtures.

The Offer to Trade Presidential Electors for State Officers is Thrown Aside.

FORT WORTH, Tex, Aug 19.—The state democratic convention reconvened at 9 o'clock this morning. Hon. C. L. Potter, of Cook county, was elected permanent chairman without opposition and, in his speech to the convention, said, among other things: "It has been charged Bryan is a populist, but I don't believe it. He has too much sense for a populist, but may have given utterances to sentiments not democratic."

The convention voted almost unanimously to abolish the two thirds rule under which the party has always worked. It also voted to nominate the three railroad commissioners at one time, the three getting the highest number of votes to be the nominees.

While the convention was waiting for reports on the resolutions and platform committee, Congressman W. Bailey spoke at length, but never mentioned Bryan's name. This caused a delegate to ask: "How about Bryan?" and Bailey quietly answered: "Mr. Bryan is a very bright young man," and retired from the platform.

A committee of three, representing the Texas populist party, called on Chairman Dudley, of the state executive democratic committee, here, and requested that he appoint a similar committee of his party to confer on a proposition to fuse on an electoral ticket composed of seven populists and thirty eight democrats. Dudley refused to appoint such a committee. The populists now threaten to fuse with the republicans, giving their vote to republican electors in return for republican votes for the populist state ticket.

X RAYS KILL GERMS.

Positive Statements as to Cures at Missouri State University.

Interesting and conclusive experiments have recently been made in the Missouri State university under the direction of Dr. William Shrader, head of the electrical engineering department testing the effect of the Roentgen rays upon various disease germs. In nearly every instance these have met with success and prove conclusively that the rays are invaluable in the treatment of these diseases.

Among the first experiments were those made with the diphtheria bacilli. Tubes were inoculated with the germs, one exposed to the rays, and the other not exposed. In the former the germs were destroyed, while in the latter they lived.

Following these tests, two guinea pigs were inolucated with a solid culture of diphtheria prepared in the bacteriological laboratory of the university. These pigs weighed 210 and 185 grams respectively. One was exposed to the rays for four hours in a wooden box having a rubber cover and is alive today after eight weeks, and no trace of the disease can be found. The other pig, not exposed to the rays, died within 28 hours after the injection of the poison. The post mortem examination showed that his death was due to the diphtheria germs.

Following the diphtheria experiments the rays were tried upon anthrax, the disease fatal alike to stock and man. These have met with a measure of success, but the result has not yet been officially announced. The last experiment, now being conducted, is with the consumption germs. A prominent resident of Columbia, Mo., has been undergoing this treatment since the early part of July. Up to July 17 he was treated seven times, being exposed to the rays from one to three hours each time. Before the first exposure he was taking each day 40 drops of digitalis and 20 drops of stropanthus. His pulse was very feeble, he suffered greatly from a soreness in the chest and could not expand his chest nor draw any but a short breath. Inside of 25 minutes after the rays were directed upon him the volume of his pulse had increased, the soreness left his chest, and he could draw a long breath and expand his lungs without difficulty.—Philadelphia Press.

All the Comforts of Home.

Jimsmith—Hello, Johnbrown! How do you prosper now that your family is away for the summer? Pretty lonesome and unsettled, eh?

Johnbrown—Not a bit of it. Getting along finely.

"That's queer. I should suppose that you would feel the loss of your accustomed surroundings."

"So I would, my boy, if I hadn't dropped into just the boarding house I did. You see, the landlady is a particular body, and she calls me down every time I miss my meals or stay out late. Then the young woman in the room across the hall has a spunky pair of twins, who do their yelling between 9 and 12 every night, so that I can go to sleep with the usual accompaniment. Talk about 'all the comforts of home.' I wouldn't leave that boarding house to go to the best hotel in town as the guest of the proprietor."—Buffalo Express.

A Plot.

"I guess I've found a way to take the conceit out of that amateur actress," remarked the girl who is not always good natured.

"How did you do it?"

"Introduced her to an amateur photographer who wanted to take her picture."—Washington Star.

THE REVOLUTION IN CRETE.

A Long Struggle Against Moslem Tyranny and Corruption.

The revolution in Crete, which occupies a prominent place in the current cable dispatches and which the average reader understands very little about, is the tenth uprising of the kind since 1821. This revolt, like its predecessors, is due to Turkish misgovernment, to excessive taxation without representation and to insulting and oppressive treatment of Christian citizens by the Moslems, who are in a minority of the population.

GEORGI BEROVITCH, GOVERNOR GENERAL OF CRETE.

The sublime porte has in previous rebellions pacified the people with certain concessions and promises, which were very soon forgotten and disregarded after the revolt was over. Again Turkey is making concessions, and at the instigation of the united powers the Moslem governor general of Crete, Abdullah Pasha, has been deposed and Georgi Berovitch Pasha, a Christian, installed in his stead.

The new governor general is an Albanian, of the Greek church, and was formerly muhavir, or vice governor, of Crete, in which position he became well known in Canea. Previous to his recent appointment as vali, or governor, of Crete he was in charge of the administration of Samos and as such received the title of Prince of Samos, which officially belongs to the governor of that island. He earned in Samos the reputation of being an honest administrator. It may be added that as vali of Crete he has no control over the Turkish troops, which still remain under the military command of Abdullah Pasha. Therefore, while he may do much to mitigate the governmental evils under which the Cretans are suffering, he cannot wholly suppress the military outrages.

While the Cretans are pleased with the new governor general they are not altogether satisfied. They are a brave, warlike and independent people, but withal rude and uncivilized. They have an intense longing for freedom or union with Greece, and it is not likely that they will rest content until one of these goals is achieved. A large majority of the population are Christians, of the Greek faith, and Turkish rule is very odious to them.

Since 1889 every description of misgovernment has been in vogue. None of the money raised by taxation in Crete has been spent on the island; not even the officials have been paid out of it, for the whole sum has been immediately shipped to Constantinople.

At the present time so great has been the mismanagement or dishonesty that in the matter of the salaries of Cretan officials alone the government is 150,000 Turkish pounds in arrears. Two years' back pay is due the police department in Crete. Self preservation being the first law of nature, it has become the fashion for Cretan officials, who are nearly all Turks, to help themselves. For some years past there have been no greater robbers on the island than the police.

Found a Use For It.

A good coffin story is related in Sir Daniel Lysons' "Reminiscences." The hero is a private soldier and the scene the West Indies, and the story neatly illustrates the rigidity of the red tape which binds the administrative departments of the army:

"One poor fellow, who was given over by the doctors and supposed to be dead, was measured for his coffin, and the coffin was made. In those hot climates there is no time to be lost. The man, however, disappointed the doctors and recovered. Then came the question, Who was to pay for the coffin? It was charged to the man, but he refused to sign his accounts with this charge against him, saying he had not ordered the coffin and did not want it. At last a compromise was arrived at. The man agreed to pay, provided he was allowed to have the coffin; so it was given him, and he stuck it up on end by his bed in his barrack room, fitted it up with shelves and kept his things in it all the time we were at Granada."—Household Words.

The patient is in a dangerous condition. Pearl was formerly employed at the Lehman book and news store. His parents reside on Scott avenue.

It is said that the financial difficulties of the Island Park assembly, which is now in the hands of a receiver, has slightly involved some of the property leased by cottagers, including several lots owned by Fort Wayne parties. This will not affect future transactions, nor is it thought to be of serious importance with those said to have been drawn into controversy.

People who think that elevator boys have an easy time of it are usually mistaken. Young fellows who engineer the elevators in the principal business blocks of the city have more ups and downs in life than most people stop to calculate. The elevator in the Pixley-Long block makes on an average 200 trips a day and the one in the Bass block is about as busy. The elevator in the Schmitz block has made as high as 250 trips in a day. Have a good word for the elevator boy. He earns his wages.

The new dry goods and shoe store to be opened in the Trentman building if it proves to be profitable during the fall and holiday trade, will be enlarged to occupy a greater portion of the block than is now leased by the management. T. H. Groves, who is looking after the affairs of the concern, says their stores in other cities are successes and can see no reason why this should not be. The firm has a good rating for all of its stores, of which there are five, the principal one being in Cleveland. Contractor E. F. Liebmen is now putting the room in shape.

Scheumann & Klaehn, the undertakers, buried one of their subjects in a handmade coffin the other day, probably the first instance of such a burial in this city for many years. Coffins and caskets are made largely by machinery in these days. The only unused hand made coffin in Fort Wayne is the one made by the venerable Louis Peltier, who was an undertaker when this city wore short clothes. Mr. Peltier made it for his own body to rest in when his worldly tasks are ended. It is generally hoped that the day may be far hence.

The second checker tournament ever held in this city has just opened with fourteen contestants in the games. While the tournament does not contain any players from abroad, as the one held here a few weeks ago, it will prove no less interesting. All of those who have entered are praticed players. They are C. H. Richmond, John Lamont, W. M. Smart, John Carl, G. H. Buck, J. Snyder, C. W. Welch, J. H. Kellogg, H. I. Smith, W. R. Durfee, Ed Stokes, W. Dexter, T. N. Hall, F. C. Parham. Their Bones Go Home.

The bones of every Chinaman who dies in this country are sent back to the Celestial empire for interment. They are shipped in large boxes from San Francisco under the designation of "fishbone," at the rate of $20 a ton. This fishbone fiction is in order to evade the rule of the steamship companies, which charge full passenger rates for the transportation of dead bodies, says the New York World.

Nearly every Chinaman who comes here is under the care of the Six Companies. They sign a contract guaranteeing to return the bones of the dead for burial with the bones of their ancestors. On every steamer leaving San Francisco there are invalid Chinese steerage passengers who hope to live until they reach their native country. An agreement exists between the Six Companies and the steamship managers which forbids the burial of these Chinamen should they die at sea, and the Six Companies furnish coffins of the peculiar Chinese fashion for use in such emergencies.

When a Chinaman dies at sea the body is embalmed, placed in a sealed coffin and lowered into the hold. The expense is paid by the other Chinese passengers and the stewards of the ship, all of whom belong to that race.

When the ship reaches Hongkong the coffins are deliver to the Tung Wah hospital, which gives them to their surviving friends in China. Every Chinaman among us is supposed to be registered at the Tung Wah hospital and with the Six Companies, San Francisco.

Generally you pay cash for what you buy and that is wise.

Fifty dollars will buy in a cash store like ours, with the lowest cash prices, about as much as you will get for a hundred dollars in installment stores, where you who pay your bills, have also to help pay for the goods of those who never pay anything.

Some times you need a little credit on a part of your purchase. When you do, don't pay an installment store $10 for an article you could buy of us at $5 or $6, but come to us and we will arrange to give you the little accommodation you need. We would rather do this and suffer a little loss of interest ourselves rather than have our regular customers forced to pay sixty, seventy and even eighty per cent more for their goods than we would charge them.

It's an old and homely adage and finds an application here.

The maker of merchandise has reached the end of his Summer "tether."

His season is about over: yours has just begun.

He's anxious to sell what is left of his made up product at almost any reasonable sacrifice.

We're watching your interests in this matter, and as a result have made purchases that will surprise you by their price cheapness.

Makers of Shirt Waists

Are straining every nerve to get rid of the balance of their season's product. It's a big chance for the consumer to buy these dainty Summer garments at a big drop from early season's prices. At least we thought so when we cornered these lots. It's a case of quick sale, and first come, first served.

BRYAN FILES DENIAL.

Declares He Was Never in the Employ of Mine Owners.

His Advocacy of Free Silver Not of Recent Date—His Income Since Retiring From Congress.

UPPER RED HOOK, N. Y., Aug. 19.—William J. Bryan, for the first time since Senator John M. Thurston, declared that he (Bryan) was in the employ of the mine owners, has made an official denial, coupled with a challenge to the national republican committee to come out in the open and accuse him or forever be silent. Mr. Bryan's attention had been called to the controversy between Senators Thurston and Stewart, and he determined last night to settle the matter if possible. He therefore demands an open charge, which he says he will refute with details of his private life and his financial affairs or silence. He said last night:

"I have already denied that charge on several occasions, but the reiteration of it by Senator Thurston, a distinguished resident of my own state, justifies me in answering it again. I have never at any time or under any circumstances been in the employ of any mine owners, individually or collectively, directly or indirectly, nor have I ever been in the employ of or paid by any bimetallic league association. Aside from my editorial salary of about $150 per month, paid by the Omaha World-Herald, and a small amount derived from the legal profession, my income since my retirement from congress has been derived entirely from lectures before Chautauqua, Lyceum and lecture bureaus which have usually paid me a fixed sum, and from contributions made by the people of the localities where I have spoken. In some instances I have received nothing at all. In most cases I have received more than enough to pay traveling expenses. In only two instances, I think, has my compensation exceeded $100, and in these instances it was about $200 at one place and about $300 at another.

"The first platform on which I ran for congress in 1890, before I was known politically outside of my state, contained a free coinage plank, and my republican opponent that year was an advocate of free coinage. In the campaign of 1892 I again ran on a free coinage platform. In 1894 I again ran on a free coinage platform, and my opponent for the senate, Mr. Thurston, while opposing unlimited coinage at 16 to 1, insisted that he favored bimetallism. I wrote the free coinage plank on which I ran in 1890 and the free coinage planks in the Nebraska state platforms in 1891, 1894 and 1896, and tried to secure the adoption of free coinage planks in the state platforms in 1892 and 1893. I only mention this to show that my advocacy of free silver is not of recent date.

"Having made this answer to Mr. Thurston's letter, I shall hereafter take no notice of individual or newspaper comment on the subject. If the republican national committee will say officially that I have been employed to deliver speeches by any mine owner, a group of mine owners, or by any association supported by mine owners I am ready to make a statement showing in detail all money received by me for spech making."

OPENED TODAY

Was the Republican Campaign in the Queen City.

Senator Sherman Makes the Principal Address, Followed by Lesser Lights.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Aug. 19.—The republican campaign will be opened here today by Senator Sherman and other speakers. At 11 a. m. the McKinley club gave a parade awaiting the arrival of Senator Sherman from Mansfield at 2.05 p. m. The program includes speaking at the Zoological gardens in the afternoon and evening. In the afternoon W. T. Perkins presides with D. D. Woodmansee, ex-president of the republican league, ex-Congressman H. L. Morey, of Hamilton, and William Doane, of Wilmington, as speakers. At the night meeting Colonel Markbreit, publisher of the Volksblatt, presides. Congressman J. P. Bromwell speaks first. Senator Sherman will be the principal speaker, followed by Solicitor Fred Spiegle in German.

OSCAR NEEBE.

The Anarchist, Leaves His Wife and Elopes.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Oscar Neebe, the anarchist, who was pardoned for his complicity in the Haymarket riots by Governor Altgeld, has left his wife and eloped with another woman. Neebe was a widower at the time of his conviction, and shortly after his release from the penitentiary married his present wife, who is well to do. Mrs. Neebe said last night that her husband had left her and she did not care if he never returned. "If he does," she said, "he will meet some unpleasantness." The woman with Neebe is said to be Mrs. Theresa Mueller, of this city. The couple have known each other but a few weeks.

MISS HELENA MITCHELL.

Kansas School Teacher to Take the Stump for Bryan.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 19.—Miss Helena Hartoett Mitchell, a teacher of delsarte and an actress of ability, will shortly take the stump for Bryan. Miss Mitchell will open at Bloomington, Ill., on Labor day, and from that time up to election wil[illegible] daily speeches through the country. Miss Mitchell has been authorized by Mr. Bryan to take the stump for him.

EXONERATED.

Superintendent Johnson Found to be Innocent.

The State Investigation Into the Willie Foster Case Shows That He Was Kindly Treated.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 19.—Secretary Bicknell, of the board of state charities, who has returned from Fort Wayne, says that the investigation of the case of Will Foster resulted in the exoneration of the officials of the school. The boy is an eppleptic and his parents charged that he had been cruelly treated. The evidence and records showed that he had burned his hands badly on a hot water pipe while in a fit, and that he had received proper care in the hospital.

HAGEY GUILTY.

Poisoned Eyster for the Purpose of Robbery.

Laura and Maude Clark Held as Accessories—The Case Attracts Much Interest.

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 19.—The coroner's jury investigating the Eyster murder case, found that the deceased came to his death as a result of poison administered by Cliff Hagey for the purpose of robbery, and that the Clark women, Laura and Maude, who made a confession last night to County Attorney Woodward, were accessories to the crime. It developed that Hagey's real name is Hutchins. This morning J. W. Hutchins, a railroad man from Stuart, Iowa, called at the police station and asked to see the suspected man. He identified him as his brother, but the meeting between the two was not a cordial one. It appears that the man who calls himself Hagey was adopted by a family of that name when he was a child two or three years old and he took that name, while his brother, who is considerably older, retained the name of Hutchins. The police are still engaged in arresting everyone who may have had anything to do with the killing of Eyster.

SWELTERING WEATHER

Hastens the Opening of the Cotton Bole.

Texas Planters Harvesting Their Crops Four Weeks in Advance of Other Seasons.

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 19.—The thermometer made its regular score of 106° yesterday. The red hot air does not perceptibly cool off until long after midnight. Wagon loads of negroes continue to leave town to pick cotton. This movement is exactly one month earlier than usual. This means that cotton has prematurely opened and will all be picked by the 15th of September. It generally takes to the 1st of February to gather all the crop, but this year it will all be at the gin houses by the 1st of October. Many buyers who have ready money are collecting at the country towns and are snapping up every bale of cotton at present prices. They say they intend holding until spring, believing it will then be worth more money.

NARROW ESCAPE.

A Battleship Turns Its Guns on the Flagship,

Sending a Shower of Leaden Missiles About Admiral Gervais and His Staff.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—During the artillery practice of the French Mediterranean squadron yesterday, off Toulon, says a dispatch from that city, Admiral Gervais and his staff had a narrow escape. Instead of aiming at a target which was being towed 500 yards behind the flag ship Brenius, a battleship of 11,000 tons displacement, the cruiser Vautour, turned her quick fire guns on the flag ship for some time. The shots rained around Admiral Gervais and his staff, and his escape was a miracle. The glass in the admiral's conning tower was riddled and a sailor was wounded. There is much mystery as to how the mistake occurred, as it was impossible that the gunners could have missed the mark by 500 yards.

WORK OF THE FLAMES.

Methodist Parsonage Burned at Wheeler, Ind.

VALPARAISO, Ind., Aug. 19.—The new Methodist parsonage at Wheeler, this county, was destroyed by fire yesterday. The pastor and family were compelled to jump from the second story to escape. Last night at the same place the barn and granary of Postmaster Brodie, of this city, were burned, with contents. Loss, $5,000.

Balfour Dying.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 19.—Hon. W. D. Balfour, who was speaker in the Ontario legislature, and a few weeks ago sworn in as provincial secretary, is lying at the point of death. He has had two attacks of hemorrhage of the lungs. No hopes are entertained of his recovery.

T. A. Giberson, representing the Cleveland Stone company, is in the city in the interest of his firm. This company furnishes the stone curbing used on the new pavements now under way.

BRYAN'S ITINERARY

Will Speak in Every City in New York.

The Home of David B. Hill Will Give Him an Ovation—His Route.

UPPER RED HOOK, N. Y., Aug. 19.—William Jennings Bryan has determined to make a pretty thorough canvass of the state of New York and for the first time since the days of Martin Van Buren will make addresses in nearly every important city. He will first go to Albany, the home of David B. Hill, spending five hours there. He will visit each big city along the New York Central road. Speaking of his trip today, he said:

"We shall leave Upper Red Hook at 6:56 on Tuesday, the 25th, reaching Albany at 8:30 p. m. We will leave there about 10 p. m. and go to Syracuse, reaching there at 2:05 a. m., and remain there until 12 m., and then reach Rochester at 2:25 p. m.; stop at Rochester an hour, arriving at Buffalo about 4:45 p. m. Then we take the first train for Erie, Pa., arriving there between 7 and 8 o'clock, and will attend a meeting of democratic clubs that night and return the next morning to Buffalo, where he will attend another meeting of democratic clubs. We will remain in western New York for the rest of the week. We will stay in Chautauqua over Sunday, and leave for the west Monday."

Mr. Bryan will probably speak in Medina, Hornellsville and Jamestown also. Mr. and Mrs. Bryan reviewed a troop of United States artillery as it passed through here this morning. It was battery K, First artillery, in command of Lieutenant A. Slaker, and was on its way to Palenville, where it will camp. Today is to be spent very quietly, the party driving down this afternoon to Rhine Cliff and through Ellerslie, the summer home of Governor Morton.

Governor Morton and his family are at their lodge in the Adirondacks and the house is closed. Whether or not Mr. Bryan will speak in Poughkeepsie, Pine Plains or some other place in this county is not yet decided, but he will probably speak in one of the places. On Saturday the party will go over to the Catskills for a day's outing.

THE ELWOOD STRIKE.

Thirteen Hundred Men Out to Stay.

Claim That the Market Prices of Tin Products Does Not Justify a Cut in Wages.

ELWOOD, Ind., Aug. 19.—Today is the day set for the 1,300 striking employes of the American Tin Plate company to apply for their positions, as individuals at the company's scales of wages. The union men say that no one will go back to work today, nor will non-union men be allowed to enter the factory. The strikers have details of men on duty, six hours each, and only officers of the company are allowed to go back and forth. The union men say they can get 5,000 men to help them within three hours. The company is stringing electric light wires around the grounds and placing barbed wire on the fences and will demand protection from the state and county today. The sheriff says he will be ready to act promptly.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, has been asked to come to Elwood today. M. N. Garland, vice president of the federation and president of the Iron and Steel workers, will also be present. The union men say that the great mills of the country almost unanimously have signed the old scale and that there is nothing to justify a fifteen per cent. cut in wages. The adjutant general said last night that no troops had been ordered to be in readiness and that it lies with the governor to issue such an order.

WORTH RECOGNIZED.

Colonel Sawtelle Appointed Quartermaster General.

Brief Sketch of the Military Career of the Man Whom Uncle Sam Favors.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The president has appointed Colonel Charles G. Sawtelle to be quartermaster general of the army vice General Batchelder, resigned. Colonel Sawtelle is now stationed at Governors Island, New York.

Colonel Sawtelle was appointed to the military academy from Maine and graduated in 1854. On September 12 1894, he received his appointment as colonel. He received the brevet rank of major, lieutenant colonel, colonel and brigadier general March 13, 1865, for faithful and meritorious services during the war. He participated in the Sioux expedition of 1855, in the Utah expedition and in the march to California several years later and was quartermaster of the Colorado river expedition in 1859. During the war Colonel Sawtelle was actively engaged in service in the quartermaster's department in the eastern and western parts of the country. Most of the time since the war he served as chief quartermaster in various departments up to September 1, 1894, when he was assigned to duty at Governor's Island, as chief quartermaster of the department of the east. He will retire in May, 1898. The appointment of Colonel Sawtelle as quartermaster general will result in the promotion of the following named officers: Lieut. Col. Wm B. Hughes, to be colonel; Major John V. Furey, to be lieutenant colonel, and Captain Chas. A. Booth, to be major.

KEEP TAB ON THEM.

Liquor Dealers of the State Hold a Meeting.

They Are Keeping Close Watch on Legislative Candidates and Know How They Will Vote.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 19.—A meeting of the executive board of the State Liquor league was held yesterday afternoon to perfect arrangements for the annual convention of the league, to be held at Tomlinson hall September 17 and 18.

An important feature of the convention will be the mass meeting on the evening of the 17th. To this meeting all reputable saloon men are invited, whether members of the league or not. It is understood that by that time legislative tickets in all counties of the state will have been selected. It is said that the league is keeping close tab on all nominees, knows how they will vote on liquor laws, and just what is to be expected of them when the legislature meets next winter.

If all reports of this character are in by the time of the convention it is probable that some decision will be reached at that time as to whether an effort shall be made to secure the repeal of the Nicholson bill, or whether it will be wiser to simply bend the efforts of the league to defeat the passage of new and more stringent laws.

An official of the league said yesterday that no attention is being paid to politics in this campaign. He said that two years ago the league thought it could depend upon democratic legislators and a democratic executive, but learned its mistake too late. "We know our friends now," he said, "and shall work for their success, no matter to which party they belong."

STEVENS ARRIVES.

Reaches Washington and Immediately Sets to Work.

Advises Co-operation With the Silver Men of All Parties That Harmony May be Complete.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—I. N. Stevens, acting secretary of the silver party, arrived in Washington today. He has been in conference with the leaders of both the populist and democratic parties here. It is the wish of the silver party to arrange separate co-operation with the committees of both the parties in order that there may be complete harmony among the supporters of Bryan. There is some talk that the headquarters of all the parties will be in the Wormley building so that the co-operation may be more complete. The populist executive committee continued its session, but nothing more than a discussion of the situation was the result of the morning session of the committee.

WINONA BIBLE SCHOOL.

Dr. Chapman Accepts the Position of Director.

EAGLE LAKE, Ind., Aug. 19.—It was with great interest that the large audience listened yesterday to the instructive lecture of Professor White on "Methods of Studying Paul's Epistle to the Romans." His familiarity with all the Scriptures makes this course of lectures of great value to the Bible school student. The discourse delivered on "Grieving the Spirit," by Dr. Chapman, yesterday morning was filled with many points valuable to those leading Christian lives. A lecture showing deep study of the ancient manuscripts of the Bible was given by Professor Crawford, of Danville Theological seminary. Rev. B. F. Myers, of London, England, arrived last night and spoke for the first time to the audience of several hundred, which has heard about him and now has the privilege of hearing the man himself.

Yesterday all the men on the grounds gathered on the steamer City of Warsaw and as they were being piloted about on the lake a conference was held, at which time Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman accepted the offer which had been tendered the day before to the director of the Bible conference to be held here next year. The acceptance was hailed with great gladness. Then the conference heartily indorsed the action of the trustees of Winona assembly, congratulating them on the acceptance of the affair.

HOKE SMITH BACK.

Brings His Vacation to an End—Interviewed.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Secretary Hoke Smith returned today from Lincolton, North Carolina, where he has been taking a much needed rest with his family for a fortnight. The secretary had no comment to make on politics and was noncommittal as to the report that he would stump Georgia for the democratic nominees between now and November. Senator Bacon, of Georgia, is in the city and had an interview with him this morning.

The steamer "City of Warsaw" ran ashore on the south end of Eagle Lake yesterday with about 200 ladies aboard. The steamers Welcome and Eagle, after a vain effort to pull the Warsaw off the beach, transferred the passengers and landed them at Winona. When the accident occurred the ladies were holding a meeting on board the steamer and raised $200 for the benefit of the association entertainment fund for the general assembly of 1897.

COCKRAN'S REPLY

To the Speech of the Democratic Presidential Candidate.

He Addresses a Big Meeting at Madison Square Garden, New York, in Reply to Mr. Bryan.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—The mass meeting of the Democratic Honest Money league was held last evening in Madison Square garden under the most favorable auspices and thousands of persons turned out to hear the Hon. W. Bourke Cockran's reply to the speech of William Jennings Bryan, delivered in the same amphitheatre last Wednesday night. At 8.25, when Mr. Cockran came in, every seat was occupied. The speaker of the evening was introduced by Hon. Perry Belmont. Mr. Cockran's speech was quite lengthy and, after his opening statements, he spoke in reply to Mr. Bryan as follows:

In the time to which I must confine myself tonight, I can do nothing but examine that one question which Bryan himself declares to be the overshadowing issue of this campaign. I am a little puzzled when I read this speech to decide just what Bryan himself imagines will be the fruit of the change in the standard of value throughout this country. If Bryan could show me that by any means known on heaven or earth, wages could be increased, I will be ready to support him, because I know of no test of prosperity absolutely infallible except the rate of wages paid to laborers. When we come to find how Bryan expects to increase the wages of labor we find ourselves lost in a maze of contradiction. No man can tell how, where or when the wages of workingmen are to be increased; but anyone who examines the scheme can see that the inevitable consequence of a debasement in the standard of value must be a reduction in the rate of wages, and that is the conspiracy in which the populists are engaged. Now, Mr. Bryan tells us that he wants to cheapen the dollar; that he wants to increase the volume of money. Nothing is more common than the mistake that money and property are identical. They are not. There may be a very large volume of circulating medium and very great poverty. The issue of paper money simply is no more an increase of wealth than the issue by an individual of his promissory note would show an increase of his property. As a matter of fact, the increase in coinage is no proof of an increase in property, but may be a strong proof of a decrease in wealth. It is not the volume of money, but the activity of money that counts.

The basis of sound trade is sound money, money which like the gold coinage of this country, the government cannot affect if it tried to. I can take a $10 gold piece and I can defy all the powers of the governments of the earth to take five cents of value from it. Having earned it by the sweat of my brow; having earned it by the exercise of my brain; having earned it by the exchange of my commodities, I can go to the uttermost ends of the earth and wherever I present it, its value will be unquestioned and unchanged. That gold dollar, this meeting, the democratic party and the honest masses of this country without distinction of party divisions, demand shall be paid to the laborer when he earns it and that no power on earth shall cheat him out of the sweat of his brow. Mr. Bryan's language is that he is going to improve the conditions of the people of this country. If he is going to work any change in the conditions of men he must increase the material possession of some part of the community. Now, if he got possession of the government tomorrow, he would not create one single thing of value by any exercise of governmental power in the world. No power ever yet exercised by tyrant or constitutional monarch can cause a barren field to become fruitful. It requires the labor of men and of men alone to create wealth. If Mr. Bryan is going to enrich somebody, the thing which he means to bestow on him he must take from somebody else. Who is to be despoiled? Who is to be enriched by the exercise of this new scheme of government? [A cry of the silver mine owners.] My friend, the silver mine owner will get cheated with the rest. A government never can be generous, because if it be generous to one it must be oppressive to another. But his financial scheme contemplates an increase in the prices of certain commodities, allowing labor to shift for itself. If the price of commodities be increased and the price of labor be left stationary, why that means the cutting down of the rate of wages.

If instead of a dollar which consists of a given quantity of gold equal to 100 cents anywhere in the world, with a purchasing power of 100, the laborer is to be paid in dollars worth fifty cents each, why he can only buy half as much with a day's wages as he buys now. Wage earners, Mr. Bryan says, know that while the gold standard raises the purchasing power of the dollar, it also makes it difficult to obtain possession of that dollar. They know that employment is less permanent, less work more probable, and reemployment less certain. Mr. Bryan would have you believe that prosperity is advanced by cheapening the rate of wages, but a fall in the rate of wages always comes from narrow production; and narrow production means there is little demand for labor in the market. When after the panic of 1873, the price of labor fell to ninety cents per day, it was harder to obtain labor than when the rate of labor was $2.00. The difference between the populist who seeks to cut down the rate of wages and the democrat who seeks to protect it, is the democrat believes high wages and prosperity are synonymous and the populist wants to cut the rate of wages in order that he may tempt the farmer to make war upon his own workingmen. Mr. Bryan leads the van in saying that it is the creditor he is after.

Labor is always the creditor of at least one day's work. When any man can show me a laborer who has been paid in advance for a day's work, I will show him a laborer who is a debtor. The laborer by the very law of his being is creditor for a week's work or two weeks' work. Every great industrial enterprise has for its chief creditors its own laborers. The heaviest account in every department of industry, whatever it may be, is always the wages account. This proposal of the populists is intended to enlist the farmer in a conspiracy to reduce the wages paid to this labor that he may have a larger proportion of his own products, and they are willing to cut down the wages of every man who works, in hope that they can sail into power on a wave of cupidity and greed awakened in the breast of the voter.

MINERS KILLED.

Fell From the Top to the Bottom of the Shaft.

The Life Crushed Out of Three Men by a Distressing Accident at Butte, Mont.

BUTTE, Mont., Aug. 19.—Pete Ryan, foreman of the St. Lawrence mine, the property of the Anaconda mine, and Jack Campbell, and John Manning, two miners, were killed at 5:10 o'clock last evening by a fall of the cage from the top of the mine to the bottom of the shaft at the 1,200 level. The two miners were working at the bottom beneath the bulkhead at the 1,200 level, deepening the shaft, when the cage containing Ryan fell from the top, instantly crushing the life out of the two men below, also killing Ryan who was in the cage. Ryan had just come to the top and was about to step out of the cage when the brake refused to work and the cage started down the shaft with fearful velocity. The engineer on top tried to throw on the clutch but could not. The safety also refused to work and the engineer and brakeman jumped out of the window in time to avoid the crash of iron and wood as the reel broke to pieces and tons of iron was shot through roof and walls.

DEMOCRATIC STUDENTS

Will Form a Permanent National Organization.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 19.—Some of the students of the University of Chicago who are friendly to Mr. Bryan are enthusiastic about a national league of democratic college men, intending to make a projected organization permanent. A convention will be held the latter part of October. Chicago is to be the headquarters, so as to be in direct touch with the democratic campaign committee. A call was issued today urging all students who are in sympathy to organize Bryan clubs in their respective institutions at once and to communicate immediately with William Oeschger, president of the Bryan club of the University of Chicago.

A CURFEW LAW

Enacted by the City Council of Topeka, Kansas.

TOPEKA, Kas., Aug. 19.—The city council has enacted a curfew law. It provides that all children under sixteen years of age, found on the streets or in public places unaccompanied by guardians, after 9 p. m. in summer and 8 o'clock p. m. in winter, shall be arrested and fined not less than $5 nor more than $25. The fire bell will ring every evening fifteen minutes before the hour.

Canada House of Commons.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 19.—Of the 213 members of the Dominion house of commons, 209 have been elected and of these there is not likely to be many absent from the election of a speaker today, judging from the large number who have already arrived here. There was caucusing last night among the conservatives as to the leadership, but it is almost certain that Tupper will be the man for the present.

Body Found.

DENVER, Col., Aug. 19.—The body of Paul Rose, a Weld county cattleman, who was murdered recently by a cattle rustler, has been found buried in the sand near the Colorado-Nebraska line. His herd was found in the possession of Al Cochran, king of the cattle rustlers of Colorado and Nebraska. Cochran is in jail at Greely. Threats to lynch him are being made.

BAD FOR SHUMAN.

A Young Man Charged With a Penitentiary Offense.

Frank Shuman Receives Stolen Property, Is Arrested and Bound Over to the Circuit Court.

Frank Shuman, who is in the pawn broking and second hand business with his father, Erastus Shuman, was placed under arrest today charged with a felony that is punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary for not less than one and not more than fourteen years.

The arrest was the culmination of a theft committed some time ago by Lee, the eighteen-year-old son of A. D. Craig, of 141 Horace street. Lee, it seems, stole his father's silver watch and tried to pawn it at Mariotte's, but without success. The officers were notified by Mr. Craig of his loss and Sergeant Daesler made a tour of the pawn broking establishments to give a description of the missing property and to ask their assistance in apprehending the guilty party. At that time Mr. Craig did not know that his son committed the deed. When the officer called at Shuman's he was informed that no such a watch had been left there. The number of the time piece and a careful description were given to Mr Shuman and the officer left. Later it developed that the identical watch had been pawned at this place, the fact becoming known by a pawn ticket sent to Mr. Craig by his son, who had disappeared shortly after taking the watch. Young Craig became penitent and wrote a letter to his father, explaining the reason of his sudden departure and enclosing the pawn ticket. This act relieves the young man of any real dishonest motive, may it be said to the credit of himself and his folks, who are highly respectable people.

Frank Shuman must now explain to the court the circumstances of the case. Claiming he did not have the watch when the officers called and being warned against receiving it puts him in a most uncomfortable position.

Frank Shuman has always been regarded as a bright and promising young fellow and his present dilemma is seriously regretted.

The young man was placed under $500 bond to appear for trial in the circuit court. J. B. Harper has been retained to defend him.

POLICE COURT.

Last night Deputy Wiley arrested John Smith and John Carlino and turned them over to Officer Greer. Two men were drunk. Mayor Scherer sent them to jail.

MAY BE RICH

Allen County Farmer Unearths Mineral Ore.

Specimens Now in the Hands of Dr. Drayer, Who Will Make a Careful Assay.

Dr. L. P. Drayer is today making an assay of mineral ore taken from the farm of a prominent Allen county farmer, whose name the doctor does not feel at liberty to divulge without permission. The ore is rich in iron, there being probably 20 per cent. of metal to the rock. Just how much of a deposit is to be found cannot be told now, as a complete investigation will not be made until Dr. Drayer has completed his examination. The same farmer brought in two small particles of gold, but this discovery cannot be considered important. It simply shows that small quantities of the rich metal were deposited in the gravel by the glacial drift.

SALOON MEN ARRESTED.

John Wilkinson and Geo. Braybrook Had No License.

Brought Before Mayor Scherer This Afternoon—Rumored That More Affidavits Will be Filed.

John Wilkinson, saloonkeeper at 11 West Columbia street, and George Braybrook, in the same business on Harrison street, are under arrest, charged with conducting their places without a license.

Both parties are having their hearing before Mayor Scherer this afternoon.

A rumor is out that more affidavits on the same charge will be filed against several other saloonkeepers soon.

POMPEII'S RUIN.

A Large Crowd Witnessed It Last Night.

There was a large attendance at the second production of Pain's wonderful pyrotechnic spectacular, "The Last Days of Pompeii," at Centlivre park last night. The production was even better than on Monday evening, and the spectators were delighted. The specialties were of the highest order, and the pyrotechnics could hardly have been surpassed. The feature of the evening was a picture in fire of the handsomest lady in Fort Wayne. Each of a score of Fort Wayne's lovely women instantly recognized in the glowing outlines her own counterfeit presentment, and the management wisely regarded discretion as the better part of valor and declined to announce the lovely one's identity.

Tonight will be free silver night and a portrait of William J. Bryan will be presented in fire.

Mrs. Byron, living west of the city, came in yesterday to do some shopping and while here her five year old child was attacked by spasms and was taken into the Postoffice drug store, where Dr. Heaton resuscitated the little one. Mrs. Byron and her child are now stopping at the Union house.

USED MORPHINE.

Paul Siegler, a School Teacher, Adjudged Insane.

News as Found in the Courts—The Defense of Dr. Johnson in the Case Against Him.

Justice Bullerman bound Solomon McLiesh over to court in the sum of $300 on the charge of stealing a watch. The offense was committed about a year ago.

The man Bellamy, accused of wife desertion, was fined $20 and costs. In default of payment he was sent to jail.

In the superior court Ambrose Donnelly has sued Isaac M. Varian and Mary E. Varian to enforce lien for $1,000. Breen & Morris are attorneys.

Justices Bullerman and Huser and Doctors Gilbert and Duemling have adjudged Paul Siegler, the teacher in the Lutheran schools at Goeglein, to be insane and he will be sent to the Richmond asylum. He has been addicted to the use of morphine and treated his pupils and also his own children in a cruel manner. The doctors discovered many morphine bottles at his home. It was not known that he used the drug, as he sent to other cities for it.

The case of Mrs. Inez Johnson against her husband, Dr. Johnson, for support, will be called in the circuit court in the September term. Dr. Johnson has employed attorneys and will make a vigorous defense. His answer filed in court will show that he was married to the plaintiff in 1893 and that they have since separated. It will also show that since their separation he has contributed nearly $1,200 to her support. At the time of the separation he gave her the household goods, valued at $1,800.

AN AUGUST FROST.

Farmers Bring News of Jack's Presence in the Lowlands.

Vegetation in Such Places Is Either Badly Injured or Ruined—A Serious Matter.

Farmers are bringing in the news of damaging frosts in the low lands last night. In the vicinity of Little River ditch corn and vegetation was badly damaged, some of it being ruined.

This advanced state of affairs is alarming to fruit growers and others.

Yesterday's telegraph reports showed that there have been frosts in Montana and some of the northwest territory but it was not anticipated in Indiana.

Last night's frost is the subject of a good deal of talk among the old timers today.

DEATH'S SAD VISIT.

Little Daughter of Dr. G. B. Stemen Summoned.

The Child Succumbs to Whooping Cough—Funeral of Miss Biegler.

At 2 o'clock this morning Mary, the little daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George B. Stemen, of 300 West Main street, died after an illness of a few days' duration. Dysentery and whooping cough caused her death. Her age was two years, one month and twelve days. The funeral will be held Friday but the hour has not yet been set.

FUNERAL OF MR. FERGUSON.

The funeral of Elmer Ferguson will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. from the house, 209 East Jefferson street, and at 10:30 from the U. B. church.

FUNERAL OF MISS BIEGLER.

Today, in Lindenwood, the remains of Miss Elizabeth Biegler were laid to their last rest. The obsequies were held from the residence of her mother, Mrs. Emeline Biegler, of South Wayne avenue, in the presence of a large concourse of sorrowing friends. Rev. A. K. Zartman, pastor of Grace Reformed church, delivered the funeral sermon in the absence of the pastor of the Third Presbyterian church, of which the deceased was a devoted member. Miss Biegler was born in Fairfield county, Ohio, and came with her parents to Fort Wayne in her girlhood. She taught in the Allen county country schools about six years, subsequently taking a position in the city schools. Her method of instruction was of a high order, appreciated by the superintendent as well as the principals and pupils of the grades which she held successfully in the Washington, Jefferson and Hoagland buildings. During these years of teaching a universal friendship grew between her and her pupils, and to all of these young people there comes a shadow of sadness because of her death. That death should have chosen one so useful in life, so noble in her Christian aims and endeavors, so self sacrificing in behalf of mankind, seems a pity, but the sorrow stricken family and friends can only bow submissively to God's will. Miss Biegler's good deeds in life will be perpetuated with tender memories for a long future. Mrs. Emeline Biegler, widow of Daniel Biegler, who died a year ago, and a sister and two brothers of the deceased are the bereaved family. The sister is Maud, a teacher in the Miner school, and the brothers Pearl, a machinist in the Pittsburg shops, and Leo, who is a carrier for THE SENTINEL on the South Wayne route.

Bulldozing Methods.

The Chicago Chronicle, one of the most uncompromising of gold advocates, calls a halt on some of the methods of the republican campaign. The Chronicle referring to the attempts of certain manufacturers to influence the voting of their employes through coercion, says:

"The bulldozing system is not only un-American, but it invariably reacts upon those who employ it. The device of threatening to close mills and manufactories unless Major McKinley is elected is cowardly and it defeats its own purpose. No man with a spark of independence in his make up will submit to the threat thus implied. * * * When Benjamin F. Jones, of Pittsburg, once chairman of the republican national committee, posts a notice in his own mills "inviting" his employes to contribute $1 each to the McKinley campaign fund he makes votes for Bryan, and when a railroad manager issues a circular threatening a reduction of wages unless the republicans win he simply assures the resentment of his men in its most effective way—at the polls. The American voter is not an idiot and still less is he a serf to be forced to deposit his ballot under a threat of the knout. He may be coaxed, but he cannot be coerced, and coercion has been and still is the main reliance of the republican party. This year of all years is the worst possible for bulldozing political methods. There is enough irritation already without adding to the ill feeling by the imbecile tactics of Mr. Hanna's henchmen. The cause of honest money has no votes to throw away and the supporters of national honor will insist that it shall not suffer defeat at the hands of the protection barons, whose sole idea of argument is a club. Let Hanna call off his dogs."

Only a Bluff.

That Spain may present a bill of damages against the United States on account of alleged violations of the neutrality laws is not impossible, but that the United States will ever pay Spain a dollar is extremely improbable. The Spanish demand is simply in the nature of a bluff. The United States government has done all that could have been expected short of actively interfering against the Cuban insurgents. At great expense, and in the face of an almost universal sentiment in the country in favor of the insurgents, the United States has kept vessels on guard along the Florida coast and elsewhere, and has, by so doing, prevented large reinforcements from reaching the insurgents. But for this action on the part of the United States, the island would have been lost to Spain months ago. Let but the United States declare a policy of "hands off," and regiments would join the Cubans where companies do now. Governments, even the most despotic, are affected by the sentiment of the mass of the people. The United States government is a government of, for and by the people. The people of the United States are in favor of the freedom of Cuba. Yet the government, in obedience to a sense of duty, has done much to prevent that freedom. It certainly has no money to pay Spain because it has not done more.

Americans in the Navy.

While Americans have always been proud of their navy and its history, there has been considerable chagrin during recent years because of the fact that the war vessels of the nation were manned largely by seamen who were not only foreigners by birth, but were not even naturalized American citizens. Ever since the revolutionary war, when England sent the Hessians to this country to subdue the Yankee rebels, Americans have been prejudiced against the plan of hiring foreigners to do their fighting. The great American naval victories have been won by Yankee tars, and while the Norwegians, Swedes, Portuguese and Russians may make excellent sailors, so long as they have not a personal interest in the country they are to defend, their best efforts cannot be expected. The patriot is the best fighter and the man who is battling for his home always displays the greatest courage.

It is agreeable to note an improvement in this regard in the personnel of the United States navy. Some time ago Secretary Herbert gave orders that preference in enlistment should be given to Americans, and congress supplemented this action with a law permitting the naturalization of sailors, under certain conditions, without the formality of residing on land. As a result, the crews of the war vessels are fast becoming Americanized. The foreign element is rapidly disappearing, for, in the first place, more native born citizens are being enlisted than was the case a few years ago, and, furthermore, many of the most desirable of the foreign sailors are taking advantage of the new law to become naturalized. They esteem it a privilege to have the right to call the flag they sail under their own, and it is easy to believe that their efficiency will be much increased by the change. The new order of things is very gratifying, and if it can be so arranged that all the officers and men of the navy may be citizens, either by birth or by naturalization, Americans will take even more pride in their navy than at present.

Bourke Cockran's Speech.

No one will dispute the statement that Hon. Bourke Cockran is a brilliant, eloquent, able orator. He is probably one of the most forcible and effective platform speakers in the country and whenever or wherever he speaks he is always sure of a large audience. Hence it is not strange that at the meeting held last night in Madison Square Garden, in New York city, when Mr. Cockran replied to the speech made at the same place several days ago by Mr. W. J. Bryan, the democratic candidate for president, he should be greeted by an audience which it is said numbered 20,000 people.

Brilliant as was his address and grand as was his rhetoric, however, his argument against the free coinage of silver, which the democratic party and Mr. Bryan advocate, contained nothing new. It consisted of nothing but what has already been said by other speakers and through the editorial columns of the republican press ever since the silver question has been under discussion, and hence the speech was not the "clincher for the gold standard" which its friends had hoped it would be.

Some of his arguments have been exploded time and again by the democratic press and democratic speakers. He asserts that the silver dollar, coined at the ratio of 16 to 1, will be a fifty cent dollar, but he does not state that that dollar will pass in all the avenues of business in this country and purchase just as much as a gold dollar will, but on the other hand tells us that this dollar will only buy half as much as it does now. Such sophistry will not pass among men who know what the purchasing power of the silver dollar really is. If the value of the silver dollar is ever reduced to fifty cents Mr. Cockran ought to know that labor will not be affected by it. The price of labor is governed by a law which, if wages were paid in depreciated fifty cent dollars, would give to the laborer just twice the amount of the face value of that money.

And then Mr. Cockran stated "I can take a $10 gold piece and I can defy all the powers of the governments of the earth to take five cents of value from it." Mr. Cockran has probably forgotten that both gold and silver American coins pass in England's banks for just their bullion value, and that his gold $10 piece would not always be received for $10 when he presented it there.

When Bland and some of the other silver orators get after Mr. Cockran, the eloquent New Yorker will have to crawl into his hole.

Mrs Charles Boehler, of 21 West Butler street, leaves this evening for Elkhart to visit relatives.

About the Clearing House.

The best illustration of how millions of dollars' worth of commercial transactions can be conducted with the actual transfer of very little cash indeed is probably to be seen in the operations of a clearing house in a great city. The greatest part of its work of course consists in the balancing, exchanging and reconveying to their original senders bank checks and other certificates of indebtedness and readiness to pay.

A. owes B. $1,000. A. does not carry so much money around with him as a general thing. So he gives B. a check on his bank for the money. It is not convenient for B. to go to A.'s bank and collect the money. He simply deposits the check for $1,000 in his own bank, which may be 100 miles distant from A.'s bank. B.'s bank lets him have the actual money if he wants it, either all in a lump or in installments. But B.'s bank sends A.'s $1,000 check to the clearing house. There, where all the accounts of all the banks belonging to the clearing house are squared up, A.'s check is received and sent back to A.'s bank whence it started.

The check may not be cashed so soon, however. It may be handed by B. over to somebody to whom he in turn owes money and put by that person into his particular bank. Sooner or later, however, it returns to the clearing house. A few of the largest cities of the Union have clearing houses of their own. Such houses in the west send checks, certificates, etc., to the clearing houses of the eastern cities and these of the east return western accounts in like manner.

Before the clearing house methods were adopted banks used to settle their accounts with one another by sending from one to another messengers loaded with bags of money and commercial paper. It was a clumsy and risky way of doing business, and now they simply send their commercial paper either on the debit or credit side to the clearing house, where the accounts are rapidly balanced between banks and each receives back its own paper.

The largest clearing house in this country is in New York, where paper representing $120,000,000 sometimes changes hands in a single day, that, too, with the exchange of very little cash money. Sixty-six banks belong to the New York Clearing House association, and during the panic of 1893 they made a compact that they would support one another when an inconveniently large demand was made on the deposits of any one of them. They did this by means of the issue of clearing house certificates.

Don't Talk of the Devil to Children.

Elizabeth Cady Stanton writes that all the happiness of her childish years was crippled and paralyzed through the fear of the devil. She was told that he was ever ready to pounce upon her and carry her off to a place where he would pitch her into the fire. She says she was taught to believe he was always standing immediately behind her at every moment of her existence. Her days were full of fear, her nights of horror and torment, because of this dreadful superstition. Her health suffered from it and her normal intellectual, physical and moral development were rendered impossible. It was not till she was 17 years old and read some books which set her mind free that she finally shook off this nightmare of her childhood.

Those who threaten children with the devil for the purpose of scaring them into obedience are doing the worst that could possibly be done. Every word of this kind is intensified tenfold by the vivid childish imagination, so that the seeds of future nervous diseases and mental disorders are actually and by no means infrequently sown.

A sort of epidemic of seeing the devil lately spread through the public schools of one portion of a large American city and serious consequences resulted. A panic occurred in one school, in which the life was almost crushed out of some of the children and others were thrown into spasms and fainting fits. It all came from the big yarns of a little girl who had been scared nearly to death by stories of the devil in her own home. She repeated the tales to her little schoolmates till they in turn began to see hoofed and horned demons on every housetop and in the darkness of every night.

Unless you are animated by an earnest desire to drive your children into insanity and invalidism, don't talk to them about the devil.

Lowest Depths of Vulgarity.

It has been left for some Americans to reach them. Unfortunate it is in some respects that money has been heretofore accumulated so quickly and easily in this country. The result is that wealth has come to people who do not know how to spend it. They have neither the education, the temperament, nor the large philanthropic view of life which would enable them to use their wealth wisely and æsthetically. All they know is to show it off and to show it off in the most ostentatious way. Really high bred persons are not fond of attracting public attention to themselves.

When away from home, they dress and act in the most quiet manner. Their clothing and all their belongings, while of the best quality and highest elegance, are thoroughly unobtrusive. To pass in a crowd without being noticed one way or the other is the aim of all well bred persons who are obliged to appear in a crowd.

The aim of the vulgar and ignorant rich is exactly opposite. To attract attention to themselves by displaying their outlay of money is their chief aim. The bicycle is the latest device which enables the fool rich to show their ignorance and lack of culture. They stick diamonds and colored gems into the handlebars and lanterns of their wheels, they cover the wheel itself with gold and silver gilt. A bicycle lately made for one of these stupid individuals cost $1,500. The vulgarity and snobbery of ignorant riches can reach no lower depth.

A time will come when beer wagons, milk wagons and heavy hauling wagons will be propelled by mechanical motive power. Then they can have broad tires of rubber or something better. All streets can be paved with asphalt. It is the pounding of horses' feet that now wears out the streets. In that blessed day nervous people who are forced to live in cities will get a rest.

THREE LITTLE BRYANS

PRETTY CHILDREN OF THE PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE.

Their Mother Devotes Much Time Instructing in the Precepts of Christian Religion — Ruth, Grace and William Their Names.

(Lincoln Letter.)

MRS. WILLIAM Bryan is not only a very modest woman, but also a very attractive one. She dislikes publicity, and is averse to being interviewed, because she regards the "I" as egotistical. After some hesitation she consented that I might ask her certain questions and publish the answers. I said to her:—

"Mrs. Bryan, are you fond of society?"

"I am very fond of meeting people," she said, "and I enjoy my own circle of friends, but society as it is generally understood, the formal round of visits, the receptions and other functions at which stereotyped questions are asked and answers given, and which are forgotten at once, because they were never made to be remembered, has very little attraction for me.

"In Lincoln, strange as it may perhaps seem to you coming from the east, we have a very delightful society. There is no great or formal entertaining, but there are professors from the state university, women who are members of clubs and who keep themselves informed on the topics of the day, students of the university, who have come from the east especially to study western agricultural methods, forming a society which is attractive as well as intellectual. Of course you can find the same thing in the east, only with us, perhaps, there is less artificiality and the hollowness of society is what the newspapers seem to be always deploring."

RUTH.

GRACE AND WILLIAM.

"Have you any pronounced views on the bringing up and education of children?"

Mrs. Bryan laughed. "You have seen quite a little of the children during the last few days," she said, "and you ought to be able to judge as to that. I do not believe in trying to shape out a certain course for a child. I believe he or she must be allowed to develop character and prove what he or she is best fitted for. One thing I do believe in, and that is in giving my daughters a thorough practical education, making them practical in every sense of the word, so that in case they should be dependent on their own exertions they would be able to fight their own battle as well as their brother can.

"Children, I think, should be given plenty of fresh air and exercise, and in their childhood their physical training is of even more importance than their mental. It has been my custom for some years to read to the children every night before they went to bed stories, tales or any other juvenile literature suitable to them. Ruth, my oldest daughter, has always been very fond of reading and being read to, but William for some time took very little interest in it. At last he showed an interest, and now he can always be amused by being read to or by looking at pictures. I believe that children learn a great deal in this way and that it is a good thing for them mentally."

"Are fairy tales a good thing for children to hear?"

"I think so. I read the children Andersen's stories in German, and although they do not understand they like to hear the words, and I translate them as I read. The children in this way get accustomed to the sound of German and pick up a little here and there."

"You naturally believe in the beneficial effect of religion on a child?"

"I do. I do not care so much for creeds, but I think that religion exercises a wholesome and restraining influence, and that children, especially boys, who have been taught a proper reverence for religion, live cleaner and better lives. My code is really a very simple one. I want my children to tell the truth, to be honest and do the best they can with the abilities which have been given them. I don't believe in trying to make children perfect or that anything should be done to stamp the individuality out of them. As I said before, children must, to a great extent, work out their own character and show what they are best suited to accomplish."

"Do you believe in the new woman?"

"There is no new woman."

"Women are to-day what they have always been. I am, of course, in favor of women taking proper outdoor exercise and making themselves as perfect physically as they can mentally, but there must be a proper dividing line between the sexes. I do not ride a bicycle, because I haven't yet had time to learn, but I intend to. I do not see any necessity for women riding in some of the costumes I have seen.

"In brief, I am not an advocate of extremes, either in fashions or anything else. A woman should not, in my opinion, allow herself to stagnate after marriage. She should keep herself as much up to date as possible, which is a good thing not only for her personally, but also for her children and her husband. But a woman's first duty is to her home, and she ought not to allow anything to interfere with that duty."

"Are you much interested in politics?"

"I am very much interested in anything that interests Mr. Bryan, although I am not a politician," Mrs. Bryan laughingly added. "I must not talk politics," she went on to say, "but I will tell you that while Mr. Bryan was in congress, I heard the speeches during the silver debates. Apart from the great question involved at this time I should like to see a return to the true and broad principles of democracy."

"What are your principal forms of amusement?"

"During the last few years in Lincoln, swimming, I think. We have a natatorium supplied with salt water from wells. This water is not only salt, but it has the real green color of water in the ocean. We do not play cards. We have no scruples against them, but neither Mr. Bryan nor myself find any interest in card playing. I am fond of the theater, comedy or tragedy, when it is good, and very fond of music when some one else plays it. When I was a child I was made to do so much practising that when I grew up I fairly detested the sight of a piano. I very seldom play now."

"I was told that you were the president of Lincoln Sorosis."

"Yes, I am. Sorosis is founded on the same lines as its New York prototype, and we discuss books and topics. There is a federation of women's clubs in Nebraska, and I think if you knew our clubs you would agree with me in saying that they rank as high as those in the east."

There were some other questions I wanted to ask Mrs. Bryan, but as several men came in just then to be presented to her I lost my opportunity. She is very proud of the pretty little city, as she has good reason to be, and the charming people living here, and she is anxious to have the people of the east understand that Lincoln is not on the edge of civilization, and that there is as much comfort and refinement to be found here as in any city in New York of the same size.

Some Mosquito Facts.

Not one, but three species are represented among those who venture into human habitations. The one whose sting hurts the most is a little dark-brown creature, but a goodlysized yellow mosquito and a large-sized black variety, with striped legs, are not backward in making their presence known.

Mosquitoes are so natural, so cunning in the manner in which they sting and draw their blood, that it will no doubt surprise most people to be told that sucking human blood is only an acquired taste with them. Dr. Uhler says that their natural food is slime and deleterious organic matter that would be the cause of much malaria were it not eaten by the mosquitoes. "Sucking blood is only an acquired taste," says Dr. Uhler, "but they have learned to do it scientifically. Did you ever notice how quickly they discover and make for places on the exposed parts of your body where arteries full of blood lie near the surface?"

All the mischief of mosquitoes was inherited by the females. The males neither buzz nor sting, nor do they seem to do anything at all except to stay lazily by and watch a spry and energetic female cavort around a human ear and make merry over the annoyance she is causing to the man or woman with nerves.

Entomologists say that the male mosquito is even too modest to eat, or, at any rate, nothing has ever been found in the stomach of one.

The males can't make a noise, because they haven't a pair of sonorous cavities near their wings, as the females have. The air hurled against these cavities by rapidly moving wings causes the buzz heard when Mrs. Mosquito is drawing near.—Baltimore Sun.

PHOTOGRAPH OF FOOT.

The exposure was made through boot and trousers, and while these are visible the fine detail of bone, and leg, and foot is amply preserved. The nails in the heel, the steel piece under the instep, and the metal rings for laces, also the metal ends of laces, and the seam in trousers, and even splashes of dirt are all clearly delineated.

STORIES OF THE DAY.

General John C. Smith Tells Colonel Watrous Some Grant Stories.

There were few of the older residents of Galena who knew General Grant better than General John C. Smith, the ex-lieutenant governor, now of Chicago. He knew him before the war, frequently met him in the army and was often with him after the trouble was over while the general lived in the Illinois town.

It was my good fortune to dine with a party of gentlemen in which General Smith was an interesting figure a few years ago. Knowing the relations that had existed between the old commander and General Smith, I am afraid I schemed to turn the talk out of the customary Masonic channel, for it was a party of thirty-third degree Masons who had assembled in Chicago for the purpose of attending the funeral of the late Dr. Hurlbut.

For nearly an hour General Smith entertained the company delightfully with talks about Grant. The first story had a bearing on the charge so often made that General Grant was given to a rather too free use of intoxicants at certain periods of his life. General Smith was on his way up the Mississippi as the guest of Captain Webb of the steamer. After they had passed La Crosse he heard a gentleman talking loudly about his personal acquaintance with General Grant. He had known him before the war and since then; had had various interesting bouts with him. They had drunk hour after hour together. General Smith became indignant and asked the man where he had had such experiences with General Grant.

"Oh, I used to drink a great deal with him at his home in Galena. I met him during the war and drank with him then, and I have had various nice times with him over our bowls since then."

"What year did you drink with General Grant in Galena?"

"Oh, along from 1854 to 1858."

"Ah, just as I supposed," said Grant's champion. "Captain Grant didn't come to Galena until 1860, and I tell you that you didn't drink with him there or in the army; nor have you had bouts with him since the war." The fellow hung his head and could say nothing.

"Those stories about Grant's drinking," continued General Smith, "were cruel in the extreme. When the charges were made during the war that the general was drinking to excess, New York and other papers sent reporters to Galena to investigate, and the people there, as soon as they discovered a reporter, first turned him over to a saloon keeper whose place was near the store of Grant & Perkins. They would ask him if he knew Grant. 'Yes.' 'Was he ever in your saloon?' 'Oh, yes, a great many times.' 'Used to drink pretty hard, didn't he, before the war?' 'No, sir, he didn't drink a drop. There is not a saloon keeper in Galena who ever saw him take a drink. Customers who bought goods of Grant & Perkins would invite the captain into the saloon. He always took a cigar; he never drank. Ask any one in town and he will tell you Captain Grant was not a drinker.'

"After Grant's second election and the question of civil service reform was being brought to the front a number in Galena thought they would use that sentiment to keep their postmaster in the service. There was another candidate, Mr. Houghton, a fine man, a printer editor, who could go to the case and set up an editorial without having first written it. Nearly everybody thought well of him. He needed the office; but the other man had the pull with Congressman Burchard. I had business in New York. That attended to I ran over to Washington, getting there the morning after the congressional delegation had decided to unite in requesting the reappointment of Congressman Burchard's friend. The latter said, 'Smith, I am glad you are in Washington. You are well acquainted with General Grant. We are going to the White House today to ask him to reappoint the Galena postmaster. Go with us.' I consented. The president received us cordially. Burchard made a strong plea. Several other members seconded his efforts. I made what I thought was a convincing talk. The president quietly listened to everything.

"'Have you said all you wish to say, gentlemen?' asked the general.

"'Yes, Mr. President, we have presented our case as strongly as we know how to do,' answered Burchard.

"'Gentlemen, the president is supposed to select the postmasters, but it is a mistake. Senators and members make the selection and the president appoints. But it has occurred to me that I am not grasping or immodest in assuming the right to choose the postmaster of my own town. Gentlemen, I shall appoint Mr. Houghton.' And the next day Mr. Houghton was appointed postmaster of Galena.

"The president had decided some time before to appoint Mr. Houghton, but he wanted to make the appointment with as little embarrassment as possible to Congressman Burchard. He wanted Burchard to make a record for having exerted himself to his fullest extent to secure the appointment. That would set him right with the postmaster, and Grant didn't care what the people said about him for appointing Houghton. He had satisfied himself that the right thing to do was to appoint that old printer editor, and we all agreed before the term expired that the president had done the right thing.

"I guess no president ever got along with the office seekers with less heartburnings, loss of sleep and annoyance than our silent old commander."—J. A. Watrous in Chicago Times-Herald.

It Arrived on Time.

"Are you the engineer?" asked the romantic young lady as she walked up the platform to the locomotive and smiled on the man looking out of the cab window.

"Yes'm," was the curt reply.

"You hold the lives of all the passengers in your hands?"

"Exactly, miss."

"And you feel the fearful responsibility?"

"I do."

"And you will—will"—

"Just so. I've got a $3 dog back there in the baggage car which I'm taking home, and I shall take the most extraordinary precautions to run this train safely into Chicago."—New York Sunday World.

The business of carrying camping parties is increasing with each year. Last month the Pennsylvania carried over its lines 2,160 campers to different parts of Ohio and Michigan. These campers are made up largely of clubs, members of which arrange to take their vacations at the same time of the year, and the practice is gaining ground from year to year.

Master Mechanic C. H. Doebler is having more improvements made at the Wabash shops and will soon have that establishment a model of convenience. Workmen are engaged in laying tracks to connect the main line with the siding on the north of the machine and boiler shops. This will greatly facilitate the handling of trucks, etc, when being taken to and from the shops.

In passing over the Erie one occasionally sees one of the old broad gauge engines which were in use in the early days of that road. They are seen standing in the yards or are used at the water pumping stations and are diminutive looking engines as compared with the standard gauge locomotives used at present. These engines were run on the Atlantic and Great Western, now the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio division of the Erie system.

These are trying times for railway superintendents, master mechanics and heads of various departments. Retrenchment orders have been issued and to carry them out and at the same time inflict the least hardship upon the men is a matter that causes the heads of the various departments much concern. It is the wish to reduce expenses without reducing wages, and to accomplish this they plan to effect a saving in material and in the purchase of supplies, while if a curtailment of train service is decided on, trainmen are reduced in rank temporarily but still are given the means of earning a livlihood until business takes a turn for the better. Conductors are taken from the caboose and put to braking and those remaining, who are always the older in the service, are given extra runs in order to equalize the falling off in the train service. Instead of hiring new men the old are continued in less important capacities

The Pennsylvania company officials have taken steps in a radical direction to stop the habit of many employes of assigning their wages to other parties This was done mostly among the shop employes, but not a few of the trainmen were frequently found guilty of the act When a man became hard up for money he hunted up some one who was willing to accept an order for his wages on a discount and advance him a certain amount of cash Other men contracted debts at stores and gave the proprietor an order on the paymaster for their wages This so complicated the paymaster's accounts that he protested, and the officials of the company, believing that the habit was detrimental to the men and to the road, decided to shut down on it at once. If a man is in need of money and can give a reasonable excuse he will be given a check in advance, but no assignment of wages or garnashees will be recognized or permitted in the future.

BUNCO COCKRAN'S MEETING.

Why the "Goldbug" Democrats Oppose Bryan.

Editor SENTINEL:

The telegraph gives a description of a meeting of the gold democrats of the city of New York, held last night, and addressed by Bourke Cockran. It appears that the meeting was presided over by Perry Belmont, the son of August Belmont, the agent of the Rothschild's of Europe, who have controlled the finances of this country more effectually than the people of this country have. It was a very appropriate selection, and clearly evidenced the character of the crowd who had gathered in the neighborhood of Wall street to take counsel as to the most successful means of riveting more strongly around the people the chains of financial oppression. The vice presidents of the meeting embraced the presidents of national banks, railroad companies, trusts and monopolies. Why should they not have served in that capacity—they were there as the representatives of the money power? The account of the meeting states that Cockran was tendered a great ovation and then 'three hearty cheers were given for McKinley and there were hisses when a gallery god yelled 'What's the matter with Bryan?'"

The fact that these good democrats cheered McKinley confirms the assertion of Governor Matthews that they constitute the annex of the republican party. True democrats who have been misled by the cunning and artful representatives of the money power in this city, by the fallacious assertions which they have made and are making, to create dissentions in the ranks of the democratic party, should be no longer deceived by them The motives and purposes of these men are evident. They are doing all in their power, to defeat Bryan and elect McKinley They are posing as democrats to render their services in accomplishing their desire and purpose to elect McKinley the more effective.

Who is Bourke Cockran? He was repudiated by his own party two years ago because of his insincerity and uncertainity as a leader of the party. God, for some unknown reason, gifted him with an eloquent tongue, which he is willing to exert, for a money consideration, for any party, or in any cause. On his arrival home from Europe, a few days ago, it was announced that Mark Hanna, the manager of the McKinley campaign, had made an arrangement with him by which he was to receive $250,000 for his services as an orator during the campaign in promoting the election of McKinley. So, Cockran can well afford, at that price, to assail the democratic party and abuse Bryan, and it only remains to be determined whether this political charlatan, in the pay of the republican party, can deceive democrats into voting for McKinley.

REFUSE TO FUSE.

Texas Democrats Reject Populistic Overtures.

The Offer to Trade Presidential Electors for State Officers is Thrown Aside.

FORT WORTH, Tex, Aug 19—The state democratic convention reconvened at 9 o'clock this morning. Hon. C. L Potter, of Cook county, was elected permanent chairman without opposition and, in his speech to the convention, said, among other things: 'It has been charged Bryan is a populist, but I don't believe it. He has too much sense for a populist, but may have given utterances to sentiments not democratic."

The convention voted almost unanimously to abolish the two thirds rule under which the party has always worked. It also voted to nominate the three railroad commissioners at one time, the three getting the highest number of votes to be the nominees.

While the convention was waiting for reports on the resolutions and platform committee, Congressman W. Bailey spoke at length, but never mentioned Bryan's name. This caused a delegate to ask: "How about Bryan?" and Bailey quietly answered: "Mr. Bryan is a very bright young man," and retired from the platform.

A committee of three, representing the Texas populist party, called on Chairman Dudley, of the state executive democratic committee, here, and requested that he appoint a similar committee of his party to confer on a proposition to fuse on an electoral ticket composed of seven populists and thirty eight democrats. Dudley refused to appoint such a committee. The populists now threaten to fuse with the republicans, giving their vote to republican electors in return for republican votes for the populist state ticket.

X RAYS KILL GERMS.

Positive Statements as to Cures at Missouri State University.

Interesting and conclusive experiments have recently been made in the Missouri State university under the direction of Dr. William Shrader, head of the electrical engineering department testing the effect of the Roentgen rays upon various disease germs. In nearly every instance these have met with success and prove conclusively that the rays are invaluable in the treatment of these diseases.

Among the first experiments were those made with the diphtheria bacilli. Tubes were inoculated with the germs, one exposed to the rays, and the other not exposed. In the former the germs were destroyed, while in the latter they lived.

Following these tests, two guinea pigs were inolucated with a solid culture of diphtheria prepared in the bacteriological laboratory of the university. These pigs weighed 210 and 185 grams respectively. One was exposed to the rays for four hours in a wooden box having a rubber cover and is alive today after eight weeks, and no trace of the disease can be found. The other pig, not exposed to the rays, died within 28 hours after the injection of the poison. The post mortem examination showed that his death was due to the diphtheria germs.

Following the diphtheria experiments the rays were tried upon anthrax, the disease fatal alike to stock and man. These have met with a measure of success, but the result has not yet been officially announced. The last experiment, now being conducted, is with the consumption germs. A prominent resident of Columbia, Mo., has been undergoing this treatment since the early part of July. Up to July 17 he was treated seven times, being exposed to the rays from one to three hours each time. Before the first exposure he was taking each day 40 drops of digitalis and 20 drops of stropanthus. His pulse was very feeble, he suffered greatly from a soreness in the chest and could not expand his chest nor draw any but a short breath. Inside of 25 minutes after the rays were directed upon him the volume of his pulse had increased, the soreness left his chest, and he could draw a long breath and expand his lungs without difficulty.—Philadelphia Press.

All the Comforts of Home.

Jimsmith—Hello, Johnbrown! How do you prosper now that your family is away for the summer? Pretty lonesome and unsettled, eh?

Johnbrown—Not a bit of it. Getting along finely.

"That's queer. I should suppose that you would feel the loss of your accustomed surroundings."

"So I would, my boy, if I hadn't dropped into just the boarding house I did. You see, the landlady is a particular body, and she calls me down every time I miss my meals or stay out late. Then the young woman in the room across the hall has a spunky pair of twins, who do their yelling between 9 and 12 every night, so that I can go to sleep with the usual accompaniment. Talk about 'all the comforts of home.' I wouldn't leave that boarding house to go to the best hotel in town as the guest of the proprietor."—Buffalo Express.

A Plot.

"I guess I've found a way to take the conceit out of that amateur actress," remarked the girl who is not always good natured.

"How did you do it?"

"Introduced her to an amateur photographer who wanted to take her picture."—Washington Star.

The Most Costly Tomb.

The most costly tomb in existence is that which was erected to the memory of Mohammed. The diamonds and rubies used in the decorations are worth £8,000,000.

THE REVOLUTION IN CRETE.

A Long Struggle Against Moslem Tyranny and Corruption.

The revolution in Crete, which occupies a prominent place in the current cable dispatches and which the average reader understands very little about, is the tenth uprising of the kind since 1821 This revolt, like its predecessors, is due to Turkish misgovernment, to excessive taxation without representation and to insulting and oppressive treatment of Christian citizens by the Moslems, who are in a minority of the population

GEORGI BEROVITCH, GOVERNOR GENERAL OF CRETE.

The sublime porte has in previous rebellions pacified the people with certain concessions and promises, which were very soon forgotten and disregarded after the revolt was over. Again Turkey is making concessions, and at the instigation of the united powers the Moslem governor general of Crete, Abdullah Pasha, has been deposed and Georgi Berovitch Pasha, a Christian, installed in his stead

The new governor general is an Albanian, of the Greek church, and was formerly muhavir, or vice governor, of Crete, in which position he became well known in Canea. Previous to his recent appointment as vali, or governor, of Crete he was in charge of the administration of Samos and as such received the title of Prince of Samos, which officially belongs to the governor of that island. He earned in Samos the reputation of being an honest administrator. It may be added that as vali of Crete he has no control over the Turkish troops, which still remain under the military command of Abdullah Pasha. Therefore, while he may do much to mitigate the governmental evils under which the Cretans are suffering, he cannot wholly suppress the military outrages.

While the Cretans are pleased with the new governor general they are not altogether satisfied They are a brave, warlike and independent people, but withal rude and uncivilized They have an intense longing for freedom or union with Greece, and it is not likely that they will rest content until one of these goals is achieved. A large majority of the population are Christians, of the Greek faith, and Turkish rule is very odious to them.

Since 1889 every description of misgovernment has been in vogue. None of the money raised by taxation in Crete has been spent on the island; not even the officials have been paid out of it, for the whole sum has been immediately shipped to Constantinople.

At the present time so great has been the mismanagement or dishonesty that in the matter of the salaries of Cretan officials alone the government is 150,000 Turkish pounds in arrears. Two years' back pay is due the police department in Crete. Self preservation being the first law of nature, it has become the fashion for Cretan officials, who are nearly all Turks, to help themselves. For some years past there have been no greater robbers on the island than the police.

Found a Use For It.

A good coffin story is related in Sir Daniel Lysons' "Reminiscences." The hero is a private soldier and the scene the West Indies, and the story neatly illustrates the rigidity of the red tape which binds the administrative departments of the army:

"One poor fellow, who was given over by the doctors and supposed to be dead, was measured for his coffin, and the coffin was made. In those hot climates there is no time to be lost. The man, however, disappointed the doctors and recovered. Then came the question, Who was to pay for the coffin? It was charged to the man, but he refused to sign his accounts with this charge against him, saying he had not ordered the coffin and did not want it. At last a compromise was arrived at. The man agreed to pay, provided he was allowed to have the coffin; so it was given him, and he stuck it up on end by his bed in his barrack room, fitted it up with shelves and kept his things in it all the time we were at Granada."—Household Words.

The Grueth verein has decided to attend the picnic of the Saengerbund at Robison park next Sunday. Several singing societies from different cities in Indiana, Ohio and Michigan have already signified their intention of attending the event.

Harrison DeHaven, custodian of the city hall is to be commended upon the neat and clean condition of the rooms and corridors throughout the building. Mr. DeHaven takes great pains with his work and anyone careless enough to spit on his clean floors ought to know better.

Pearl Burnett, the boy who was at death's door with typhoid fever, was on the road to recovery, but hope is again darkened by a relapse and an attack of pneumonia. The patient is in a dangerous condition. Pearl was formerly employed at the Lehman book and news store. His parents reside on Scott avenue.

It is said that the financial difficulties of the Island Park assembly, which is now in the hands of a receiver, has slightly involved some of the property leased by cottagers, including several lots owned by Fort Wayne parties. This will not affect future transactions, nor is it thought to be of serious importance with those said to have been drawn into controversy.

People who think that elevator boys have an easy time of it are usually mistaken. Young fellows who engineer the elevators in the principal business blocks of the city have more ups and downs in life than most people stop to calculate. The elevator in the Pixley-Long block makes on an average 200 trips a day and the one in the Bass block is about as busy. The elevator in the Schmitz block has made as high as 250 trips in a day. Have a good word for the elevator boy. He earns his wages.

The new dry goods and shoe store to be opened in the Trentman building if it proves to be profitable during the fall and holiday trade, will be enlarged to occupy a greater portion of the block than is now leased by the management. T. H. Groves, who is looking after the affairs of the concern, says their stores in other cities are successes and can see no reason why this should not be. The firm has a good rating for all of its stores, of which there are five, the principal one being in Cleveland. Contractor E. F. Liebman is now putting the room in shape.

A. C Katt has returned from Louisville, where he attended the bicycle races.

W. S O'Rourke, supreme secretary of the Catholic Knights of America, is at Chicago.

Miss Gertrude Mayhew has returned from Indianapolis, where she has been the guest of Miss Warner.

D. W. Underwood has resigned his position in the printing department of the Old Fort Spice company.

Mrs J. D. McPherson and children, of Detroit, Mich , are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoffman, of 183 Calhoun street.

Scheumann & Klaehn, the undertakers, buried one of their subjects in a handmade coffin the other day, probably the first instance of such a burial in this city for many years. The only unused hand made coffin in Fort Wayne is the one made by the venerable Louis Peltier, who was an undertaker when this city wore short clothes. Mr. Peltier made it for his own body to rest in when his worldly tasks are ended. It is generally hoped that the day may be far hence.

Their Bones Go Home.

The bones of every Chinaman who dies in this country are sent back to the Celestial empire for interment. They are shipped in large boxes from San Francisco under the designation of "fishbone," at the rate of $20 a ton. This fishbone fiction is in order to evade the rule of the steamship companies, which charge full passenger rates for the transportation of dead bodies, says the New York World.

Nearly every Chinaman who comes here is under the care of the Six Companies. They sign a contract guaranteeing to return the bones of the dead for burial with the bones of their ancestors. On every steamer leaving San Francisco there are invalid Chinese steerage passengers who hope to live until they reach their native country. An agreement exists between the Six Companies and the steamship managers which forbids the burial of these Chinamen should they die at sea, and the Six Companies furnish coffins of the peculiar Chinese fashion for use in such emergencies.

When a Chinaman dies at sea the body is embalmed, placed in a sealed coffin and lowered into the hold. The expense is paid by the other Chinese passengers and the stewards of the ship, all of whom belong to that race.

When the ship reaches Hongkong the coffins are deliver to the Tung Wah hospital, which gives them to their surviving friends in China. Every Chinaman among us is supposed to be registered at the Tung Wah hospital and with the Six Companies San Francisco.

Generally you pay cash for what you buy and that is wise.

Fifty dollars will buy in a cash store like ours, with the lowest cash prices, about as much as you will get for a hundred dollars in installment stores, where you who pay your bills, have also to help pay for the goods of those who never pay anything.

Some times you need a little credit on a part of your purchase. When you do, don't pay an installment store $10 for an article you could buy of us at $5 or $6, but come to us and we will arrange to give you the little accommodation you need. We would rather do this and suffer a little loss of interest ourselves rather than have our regular customers forced to pay sixty, seventy and even eighty per cent more for their goods than we would charge them.

Bulldozing Methods.

The Chicago Chronicle, one of the most uncompromising of gold advocates, calls a halt on some of the methods of the republican campaign. The Chronicle referring to the attempts of certain manufacturers to influence the voting of their employes through coercion, says:

"The bulldozing system is not only un-American, but it invariably reacts upon those who employ it. The device of threatening to close mills and manufactories unless Major McKinley is elected is cowardly and it defeats its own purpose. No man with a spark of independence in his make up will submit to the threat thus implied. * * * When Benjamin F. Jones, of Pittsburg, once chairman of the republican national committee, posts a notice in his own mills "inviting" his employes to contribute $1 each to the McKinley campaign fund he makes votes for Bryan, and when a railroad manager issues a circular threatening a reduction of wages unless the republicans win he simply assures the resentment of his men in its most effective way—at the polls. The American voter is not an idiot and still less is he a serf to be forced to deposit his ballot under a threat of the knout. He may be coaxed, but he cannot be coerced, and coercion has been and still is the main reliance of the republican party. This year of all years is the worst possible for bulldozing political methods. There is enough irritation already without adding to the ill feeling by the imbecile tactics of Mr. Hanna's henchmen. The cause of honest money has no votes to throw away and the supporters of national honor will insist that it shall not suffer defeat at the hands of the protection barons, whose sole idea of argument is a club. Let Hanna call off his dogs."

Only a Bluff.

That Spain may present a bill of damages against the United States on account of alleged violations of the neutrality laws is not impossible, but that the United States will ever pay Spain a dollar is extremely improbable. The Spanish demand is simply in the nature of a bluff. The United States government has done all that could have been expected short of actively interfering against the Cuban insurgents. At great expense and in the face of an almost universal sentiment in the country in favor of the insurgents, the United States has kept vessels on guard along the Florida coast and elsewhere, and has, by so doing, prevented large reinforcements from reaching the insurgents. But for this action on the part of the United States, the island would have been lost to Spain months ago. Let but the United States declare a policy of "hands off," and regiments would join the Cubans where companies do now. Governments, even the most despotic, are affected by the sentiment of the mass of the people. The United States government is a government of, for and by the people. The people of the United States are in favor of the freedom of Cuba. Yet the government, in obedience to a sense of duty, has done much to prevent that freedom. It certainly has no money to pay Spain because it has not done more.

Americans in the Navy.

While Americans have always been proud of their navy and its history, there has been considerable chagrin during recent years because of the fact that the war vessels of the nation were manned largely by seamen who were not only foreigners by birth, but were not even naturalized American citizens. Ever since the revolutionary war, when England sent the Hessians to this country to subdue the Yankee rebels, Americans have been prejudiced against the plan of hiring foreigners to do their fighting. The great American naval victories have been won by Yankee tars, and while the Norwegians, Swedes, Portuguese and Russians may make excellent sailors, so long as they have not a personal interest in the country they are to defend, their best efforts cannot be expected. The patriot is the best fighter and the man who is battling for his home always displays the greatest courage.

It is agreeable to note an improvement in this regard in the personnel of the United States navy. Some time ago Secretary Herbert gave orders that preference in enlistment should be given to Americans, and congress supplemented this action with a law permitting the naturalization of sailors, under certain conditions, without the formality of residing on land. As a result, the crews of the war vessels are fast becoming Americanized. The foreign element is rapidly disappearing, for, in the first place, more native born citizens are being enlisted than was the case a few years ago, and, furthermore, many of the most desirable of the foreign sailors are taking advantage of the new law to become naturalized. They esteem it a privilege to have the right to call the flag they sail under their own, and it is easy to believe that their efficiency will be much increased by the change. The new order of things is very gratifying, and if it can be so arranged that all the officers and men of the navy may be citizens, either by birth or by naturalization, Americans will take even more pride in their navy than at present.

Bourke Cockran's Speech.

No one will dispute the statement that Hon. Bourke Cockran is a brilliant, eloquent, able orator. He is probably one of the most forcible and effective platform speakers in the country and whenever or wherever he speaks he is always sure of a large audience. Hence it is not strange that at the meeting held last night in Madison Square Garden, in New York city, when Mr. Cockran replied to the speech made at the same place several days ago by Mr. W. J. Bryan, the democratic candidate for president, he should be greeted by an audience which it is said numbered 20,000 people.

Brilliant as was his address and grand as was his rhetoric, however, his argument against the free coinage of silver, which the democratic party and Mr. Bryan advocate, contained nothing new. It consisted of nothing but what has already been said by other speakers and through the editorial columns of the republican press ever since the silver question has been under discussion, and hence the speech was not the "clincher for the gold standard" which its friends had hoped it would be.

Some of his arguments have been exploded time and again by the democratic press and democratic speakers. He asserts that the silver dollar, coined at the ratio of 16 to 1, will be a fifty cent dollar, but he does not state that that dollar will pass in all the avenues of business in this country and purchase just as much as a gold dollar will, but on the other hand tells us that this dollar will only buy half as much as it does now. Such sophistry will not pass among men who know what the purchasing power of the silver dollar really is. If the value of the silver dollar is ever reduced to fifty cents Mr. Cockran ought to know that labor will not be affected by it. The price of labor is governed by a law which, if wages were paid in depreciated fifty cent dollars, would give to the laborer just twice the amount of the face value of that money.

And then Mr. Cockran states "I can take a $10 gold piece and I can defy all the powers of the governments of the earth to take five cents of value from it." Mr. Cockran has probably forgotten that both gold and silver American coins pass in England's banks for just their bullion value, and that his gold $10 piece would not always be received for $10 when he presented it there.

When Bland and some of the other silver orators get after Mr. Cockran, the eloquent New Yorker will have to crawl into his hole.

Mrs. Charles Boebler, of 21 West Butler street, leaves this evening for Elkhart to visit relatives.

About the Clearing House.

The best illustration of how millions of dollars' worth of commercial transactions can be conducted with the actual transfer of very little cash indeed is probably to be seen in the operations of a clearing house in a great city. The greatest part of its work of course consists in the balancing, exchanging and reconveying to their original senders bank checks and other certificates of indebtedness and readiness to pay.

A owes B. $1,000. A. does not carry so much money around with him as a general thing. So he gives B. a check on his bank for the money. It is not convenient for B. to go to A.'s bank and collect the money. He simply deposits the check for $1,000 in his own bank, which may be 100 miles distant from A.'s bank. B.'s bank lets him have the actual money if he wants it, either all in a lump or in installments. But B.'s bank sends A.'s $1,000 check to the clearing house. There, where all the accounts of all the banks belonging to the clearing house are squared up, A.'s check is received and sent back to A.'s bank whence it started.

The check may not be cashed so soon, however. It may be handed by B. over to somebody to whom he in turn owes money and put by that person into his particular bank. Sooner or later, however, it returns to the clearing house. A few of the largest cities of the Union have clearing houses of their own. Such houses in the west send checks, certificates, etc., to the clearing houses of the eastern cities and these of the east return western accounts in like manner.

Before the clearing house methods were adopted banks used to settle their accounts with one another by sending from one to another messengers loaded with bags of money and commercial paper. It was a clumsy and risky way of doing business, and now they simply send their commercial paper either on the debit or credit side to the clearing house, where the accounts are rapidly balanced between banks and each receives back its own paper.

The largest clearing house in this country is in New York, where paper representing $120,000,000 sometimes changes hands in a single day, that, too, with the exchange of very little cash money. Sixty-six banks belong to the New York Clearing House association, and during the panic of 1893 they made a compact that they would support one another when an inconveniently large demand was made on the deposits of any one of them. They did this by means of the issue of clearing house certificates.

Don't Talk of the Devil to Children.

Elizabeth Cady Stanton writes that all the happiness of her childish years was crippled and paralyzed through the fear of the devil. She was told that he was ever ready to pounce upon her and carry her off to a place where he would pitch her into the fire. She says she was taught to believe he was always standing immediately behind her at every moment of her existence. Her days were full of fear, her nights of horror and torment, because of this dreadful superstition. Her health suffered from it and her normal intellectual, physical and moral development were rendered impossible. It was not till she was 17 years old and read some books which set her mind free that she finally shook off this nightmare of her childhood.

Those who threaten children with the devil for the purpose of scaring them into obedience are doing the worst that could possibly be done. Every word of this kind is intensified tenfold by the vivid childish imagination, so that the seeds of future nervous diseases and mental disorders are actually and by no means infrequently sown.

A sort of epidemic of seeing the devil lately spread through the public schools of one portion of a large American city and serious consequences resulted. A panic occurred in one school, in which the life was almost crushed out of some of the children and others were thrown into spasms and fainting fits. It all came from the big yarns of a little girl who had been scared nearly to death by stories of the devil in her own home. She repeated the tales to her little schoolmates till they in turn began to see hoofed and horned demons on every housetop and in the darkness of every night.

Unless you are animated by an earnest desire to drive your children into insanity and invalidism, don't talk to them about the devil.

Lowest Depths of Vulgarity.

It has been left for some Americans to reach them. Unfortunate it is in some respects that money has been heretofore accumulated so quickly and easily in this country. The result is that wealth has come to people who do not know how to spend it. They have neither the education, the temperament, nor the large philanthropic view of life which would enable them to use their wealth wisely and æsthetically. All they know is to show it off and to show it off in the most ostentatious way. Really high bred persons are not fond of attracting public attention to themselves.

When away from home, they dress and act in the most quiet manner. Their clothing and all their belongings, while of the best quality and highest elegance, are thoroughly unobtrusive. To pass in a crowd without being noticed one way or the other is the aim of all well bred persons who are obliged to appear in a crowd.

The aim of the vulgar and ignorant rich is exactly opposite. To attract attention to themselves by displaying their outlay of money is their chief aim. The bicycle is the latest device which enables the fool rich to show their ignorance and lack of culture. They stick diamonds and colored gems into the handlebars and lanterns of their wheels, they cover the wheel itself with gold and silver gilt. A bicycle lately made for one of these stupid individuals cost $1,500. The vulgarity and snobbery of ignorant riches can reach no lower depth.

A time will come when beer wagons, milk wagons and heavy hauling wagons will be propelled by mechanical motive power. Then they can have broad tires of rubber or something better. All streets can be paved with asphalt. It is the pounding of horses' feet that now wears out the streets. In that blessed day nervous people who are forced to live in cities will get a rest.

The name of the Prince of Samos, who is governor of Crete, is Berovitch George Pasha.

THREE LITTLE BRYANS

PRETTY CHILDREN OF THE PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE.

Their Mother Devotes Much Time Instructing in the Precepts of Christian Religion — Ruth, Grace and William Their Names.

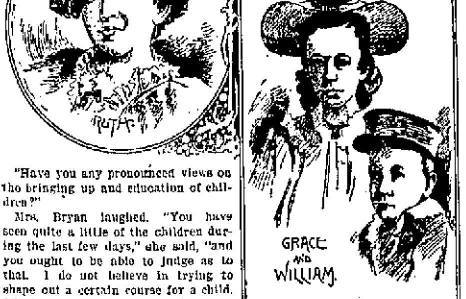
(Lincoln Letter.)

Mrs. William Bryan is not only a very modest woman, but also a very attractive one. She dislikes publicity, and is averse to being interviewed, because she regards the "I" as egotistical. After some hesitation she consented that I might ask her certain questions and publish the answers. I said to her:—

"Mrs. Bryan, are you fond of society?"

"I am very fond of meeting people," she said, "and I enjoy my own circle of friends, but society as it is generally understood, the formal round of visits, the receptions and other functions at which stereotyped questions are asked and answers given, and which are forgotten at once, because they were never made to be remembered, has very little attraction for me.

"In Lincoln, strange as it may perhaps seem to you coming from the east, we have a very delightful society. There is no great or formal entertaining, but there are professors from the state university, women who are members of clubs and who keep themselves informed on the topics of the day, students of the university, who have come from the east especially to study western agricultural methods, forming a society which is attractive as well as intellectual. Of course you can find the same thing in the east, only with us, perhaps, there is less artificiality and the hollowness of society is what the newspapers seem to be always deploring."



"Have you any pronounced views on the bringing up and education of children?"

Mrs. Bryan laughed. "You have seen quite a little of the children during the last few days," she said, "and you ought to be able to judge as to that. I do not believe in trying to shape out a certain course for a child. I believe he or she must be allowed to develop character and prove what he or she is best fitted for. One thing I do believe in, and that is in giving my daughters a thorough practical education, making them practical in every sense of the word, so that in case they should be dependent on their own exertions they would be able to fight their own battle as well as their brother can.

"Children, I think, should be given plenty of fresh air and exercise, and in their childhood their physical training is of even more importance than their mental. It has been my custom for some years to read to the children every night before they went to bed stories, tales or any other juvenile literature suitable to them. Ruth, my oldest daughter, has always been very fond of reading and being read to, but William for some time took very little interest in it. At last he showed an interest, and now he can always be amused by being read to or by looking at pictures. I believe that children learn a great deal in this way and that it is a good thing for them mentally."

"Are fairy tales a good thing for children to hear?"

"I think so. I read the children Andersen's stories in German, and although they do not understand they like to hear the words, and I translate them as I read. The children in this way get accustomed to the sound of German and pick up a little here and there."

"You naturally believe in the beneficial effect of religion on a child?"

"I do. I do not care so much for creeds, but I think that religion exercises a wholesome and restraining influence, and that children, especially boys, who have been taught a proper reverence for religion, live cleaner and better lives. My code is really a very simple one. I want my children to tell the truth, to be honest and do the best they can with the abilities which have been given them. I don't believe in trying to make children perfect or that anything should be done to stamp the individuality out of them. As I said before, children must, to a great extent, work out their own character and show what they are best suited to accomplish."

"Do you believe in the new woman?"

"There is no new woman."

"Women are to-day what they have always been. I am, of course, in favor of women taking proper outdoor exercise and making themselves as perfect physically as they can mentally, but there must be a proper dividing line between the sexes. I do not ride a bicycle, because I haven't yet had time to learn, but I intend to. I do not see any necessity for women riding in some of the costumes I have seen.

"In brief, I am not an advocate of extremes, either in fashions or anything else. A woman should not, in my opinion, allow herself to stagnate after marriage. She should keep herself as much up to date as possible, which is a good thing not only for her personally, but also for her children and her husband. But a woman's first duty is to her home, and she ought not to allow anything to interfere with that duty."

"Are you much interested in politics?"

"I am very much interested in anything that interests Mr. Bryan, although I am not a politician," Mrs. Bryan laughingly added. "I must not talk politics," she went on to say, "but I will tell you that while Mr. Bryan was in congress, I heard the speeches during the silver debates. Apart from the great question involved at this time I should like to see a return to the true and broad principles of democracy."

"What are your principal forms of amusement?"

"During the last few years in Lincoln, swimming, I think. We have a natatorium supplied with salt water from wells. This water is not only salt, but it has the real green color of water in the ocean. We do not play cards. We have no scruples against them, but neither Mr. Bryan nor myself find any interest in card playing. I am fond of the theater, comedy or tragedy, when it is good, and very fond of music when some one else plays it. When I was a child I was made to do so much practising that when I grew up I fairly detested the sight of a piano. I very seldom play now."

"I was told that you were the president of Lincoln Sorosis."

"Yes, I am. Sorosis is founded on the same lines as its New York prototype, and we discuss books and topics. There is a federation of women's clubs in Nebraska, and I think if you knew our clubs you would agree with me in saying that they rank as high as those in the east."

There were some other questions I wanted to ask Mrs. Bryan, but as several men came in just then to be presented to her I lost my opportunity. She is very proud of the pretty little city, as she has good reason to be, and the charming people living here, and she is anxious to have the people of the east understand that Lincoln is not on the edge of civilization, and that there is as much comfort and refinement to be found here as in any city in New York of the same size.

Some Mosquito Facts.

Not one, but three species are represented among those who venture into human habitations. The one whose sting hurts the most is a little dark-brown creature, but a goodly sized yellow mosquito and a large-sized black variety, with striped legs, are not backward in making their presence known.

Mosquitoes are so natural, so cunning in the manner in which they sting and draw their blood, that it will no doubt surprise most people to be told that sucking human blood is only an acquired taste with them. Dr. Uhler says that their natural food is slime and deleterious organic matter that would be the cause of much malaria were it not eaten by the mosquitoes. "Sucking blood is only an acquired taste," says Dr. Uhler, "but they have learned to do it scientifically. Did you ever notice how quickly they discover and make for places on the exposed parts of your body where arteries full of blood lie near the surface?"

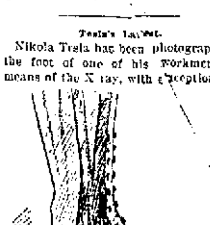
All the mischief of mosquitoes was inherited by the females. The males neither buzz nor sting, nor do they seem to do anything at all except to stay lazily by and watch a spry and energetic female cavort around a human ear and make merry over the annoyance she is causing to the man or woman with nerves.

Entomologists say that the male mosquito is even too modest to eat, or, at any rate, nothing has ever been found in the stomach of one.

The males can't make a noise, because they haven't a pair of sonorous cavities near their wings, as the females have. The air hurled against these cavities by rapidly moving wings causes the buzz heard when Mrs. Mosquito is drawing near.—Baltimore Sun.

Tesla's Latest.

Nikola Tesla has been photographing the foot of one of his workmen by means of the X ray, with exceptionally interesting results. He says that it is one of the best specimens of the possibilities of the X rays that has yet been produced.



PHOTOGRAPH OF FOOT.

The exposure was made through boot and trousers, and while there are visible the fine detail of bone, and leg, and foot is amply preserved. The nails in the heel, the steel piece under the instep, and the metal rings for laces, also the metal ends of laces, and the seam in trousers, and even splashes of dirt are all clearly delineated.

STORIES OF THE DAY.

General John C. Smith Tells Colonel Watrous Some Grant Stories.

There were few of the older residents of Galena who knew General Grant better than General John C. Smith, the ex-lieutenant governor, now of Chicago. He knew him before the war, frequently met him in the army and was often with him after the trouble was over while the general lived in the Illinois town.

It was my good fortune to dine with a party of gentlemen in which General Smith was an interesting figure a few years ago. Knowing the relations that had existed between the old commander and General Smith, I am afraid I schemed to turn the talk out of the customary Masonic channel, for it was a party of thirty-third degree Masons who had assembled in Chicago for the purpose of attending the funeral of the late Dr. Hurlbut.

For nearly an hour General Smith entertained the company delightfully with talks about Grant. The first story had a bearing on the charge so often made that General Grant was given to a rather too free use of intoxicants at certain periods of his life. General Smith was on his way up the Mississippi as the guest of Captain Webb of the steamer. After they had passed La Crosse he heard a gentleman talking loudly about his personal acquaintance with General Grant. He had known him before the war and since then; had had various interesting bouts with him. They had drunk hour after hour together. General Smith became indignant and asked the man where he had had such experiences with General Grant.

"Oh, I used to drink a great deal with him at his home in Galena. I met him during the war and drank with him then, and I have had various nice times with him over our bowls since then."

"What year did you drink with General Grant in Galena?"

"Oh, along from 1854 to 1858."

"Ah, just as I supposed," said Grant's champion. "Captain Grant didn't come to Galena until 1860, and I tell you that you didn't drink with him there or in the army; nor have you had bouts with him since the war." The fellow hung his head and could say nothing.

"Those stories about Grant's drinking," continued General Smith, "were cruel in the extreme. When the charges were made during the war that the general was drinking to excess, New York and other papers sent reporters to Galena to investigate, and the people there, as soon as they discovered a reporter, first turned him over to a saloon keeper whose place was near the store of Grant & Perkins. They would ask him if he knew Grant. 'Yes.' 'Was he ever in your saloon?' 'Oh, yes, a great many times.' 'Used to drink pretty hard, didn't he, before the war?' 'No, sir, he didn't drink a drop. There is not a saloon keeper in Galena who ever saw him take a drink. Customers who bought goods of Grant & Perkins would invite the captain into the saloon. He always took a cigar; he never drank. Ask any one in town and he will tell you Captain Grant was not a drinker.'

"After Grant's second election and the question of civil service reform was being brought to the front a number in Galena thought they would use that sentiment to keep their postmaster in the service. There was another candidate, Mr. Houghton, a fine man, a printer editor, who could go to the case and set up an editorial without having first written it. Nearly everybody thought well of him. He needed the office; but the other man had the pull with Congressman Burchard. I had business in New York. That attended to I ran over to Washington, getting there the morning after the congressional delegation had decided to unite in requesting the reappointment of Congressman Burchard's friend. The latter said, 'Smith, I am glad you are in Washington. You are well acquainted with General Grant. We are going to the White House today to ask him to reappoint the Galena postmaster. Go with us.' I consented. The president received us cordially. Burchard made a strong plea. Several other members seconded his efforts. I made what I thought was a convincing talk. The president quietly listened to everything.

"'Have you said all you wish to say, gentlemen?' asked the general.

"'Yes, Mr. President, we have presented our case as strongly as we know how to do,' answered Burchard.

"'Gentlemen, the president is supposed to select the postmasters, but it is a mistake. Senators and members make the selection and the president appoints. But it has occurred to me that I am not grasping or immodest in assuming the right to choose the postmaster of my own town. Gentlemen, I shall appoint Mr. Houghton.' And the next day Mr. Houghton was appointed postmaster of Galena.

"The president had decided some time before to appoint Mr. Houghton, but he wanted to make the appointment with as little embarrassment as possible to Congressman Burchard. He wanted Burchard to make a record for having exerted himself to his fullest extent to secure the appointment. That would set him right with the postmaster, and Grant didn't care what the people said about him for appointing Houghton. He had satisfied himself that the right thing to do was to appoint that old printer editor, and we all agreed before the term expired that the president had done the right thing.

"I guess no president ever got along with the office seekers with less heartburnings, loss of sleep and annoyance than our silent old commander."—J. A. Watrous in Chicago Times-Herald.

It Arrived on Time.

"Are you the engineer?" asked the romantic young lady as she walked up the platform to the locomotive and smiled on the man looking out of the cab window.

"Yes'm," was the curt reply.

"You hold the lives of all the passengers in your hands?"

"Exactly, miss."

"And you feel the fearful responsibility?"

"I do."

"And you will—will"—

"Just so. I've got a $2 dog back there in the baggage car which I'm taking home, and I shall take the most extraordinary precautions to run this train safely into Chicago."—New York Sunday World.

The patient is in a dangerous condition. Pearl was formerly employed at the Lehman book and news store. His parents reside on Scott avenue.

It is said that the financial difficulties of the Island Park assembly, which is now in the hands of a receiver, has slightly involved some of the property leased by cottagers, including several lots owned by Fort Wayne parties. This will not affect future transactions, nor is it thought to be of serious importance with those said to have been drawn into controversy.

People who think that elevator boys have an easy time of it are usually mistaken. Young fellows who engineer the elevators in the principal business blocks of the city have more ups and downs in life than most people stop to calculate. The elevator in the Pixley-Long block makes on an average 240 trips a day and the one in the Bass block is about as busy. The elevator in the Schmitz block has made as high as 240 trips in a day. Have a good word for the elevator boy. He earns his wages.

The new dry goods and shoe store to be opened in the Trentman building if it proves to be profitable during the fall and holiday trade, will be enlarged to occupy a greater portion of the block than is now leased by the management. T. H. Grover, who is looking after the affairs of the concern, says their stores in other cities are successes and can see no reason why this should not be. The firm has a good rating for all of its stores of which there are five, the principal one being in Cleveland. Contractor E. F Liebman is now putting the room in shape.

Scheumann & Klaehn, the undertakers, buried one of their subjects in a handmade coffin the other day, probably the first instance of such a burial in this city for many years. Coffins and caskets are made largely by machinery in these days. The only unused hand made coffin in Fort Wayne is the one made by the venerable Louis Pellier, who was an undertaker when this city wore short clothes. Mr. Pellier made it for his own body to rest in when his worldly tasks are ended. It is generally hoped that the day may be far hence.

The second checker tournament ever held in this city has just opened with fourteen contestants in the games. While the tournament does not contain any players from abroad, as the one held here a few weeks ago it will prove no less interesting. All of those who have entered are practiced players. They are C. H. Richmond, John Lamont, W. M. Smart, John Carl, G. H. Buck, J. Snyder, C. W. Welch, J. H. Kellogg, H. J. Smith, W. R. Durfee, Eli Stokes, W. Dexter, T. N. Hall, F. C. Parham. Their Bones Go Home.

The bones of every Chinaman who dies in this country are sent back to the Celestial empire for interment. They are shipped in large boxes from San Francisco under the designation of "fishbone," at the rate of $20 a ton. This fishbone fiction is in order to evade the rule of the steamship companies, which charge full passenger rates for the transportation of dead bodies, says the New York World.

Nearly every Chinaman who comes here is under the care of the Six Companies. They sign a contract guaranteeing to return the bones of the dead for burial with the bones of their ancestors. On every steamer leaving San Francisco there are invalid Chinese steerage passengers who hope to live until they reach their native country. An agreement exists between the Six Companies and the steamship managers which forbids the burial of these Chinamen should they die at sea, and the Six Companies furnish coffins of the peculiar Chinese fashion for use in such emergencies.

When a Chinaman dies at sea the body is embalmed, placed in a sealed coffin and lowered into the hold. The expense is paid by the other Chinese passengers and the stewards of the ship, all of whom belong to that race.

When the ship reaches Hongkong the coffins are delivered to the Tung Wah hospital, which gives them to their surviving friends in China. Every Chinaman among us is supposed to be registered at the Tung Wah hospital and with the Six Companies, San Francisco.

Generally you pay cash for what you buy and that is wise.

Fifty dollars will buy in a cash store like ours, with the lowest cash prices, about as much as you will get for a hundred dollars in installment stores, where you who pay your bills, have also to help pay for the goods of those who never pay anything.

Some times you need a little credit on a part of your purchase. When you do, don't pay an installment store $10 for an article you could buy of us at $5 or $6, but come to us and we will arrange to give you the little accommodation you need. We would rather do this and suffer a little loss of interest ourselves rather than have our regular customers forced to pay sixty, seventy and even eighty per cent more for their goods than we would charge them.
